Pack Of Dogs Kills Small Boy

Officers, Citizens Start Big Roundup

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A pack of dogs attacked and killed a small boy in suburban Hazelwood Saturday, touching off a big roundup of stray dogs by angry, gun-wielding citizens.

The body of 2½-year-old Mark D. Draper was found by a neighbor in a vacant field near the child's home.

Sporadic shots were heard as armed volunteers roamed in adjoining communities in northwest St. Louis County. Police warned that someone might be hurt by a stray shot and appealed to people to stay out of the area.

The boy's father, insurance man Douglas G. Draper, said neighborhood pets allowed to run loose in the sparsely settled middle class community were to blame for his son's death.

Mel C. Jones Sr., 51, the neighbor who found the child's body, said the dogs charged him snarling, until he chased them off with a length of pipe in his hand.

Police and member of the St. Louis County Rabies Control Unit and the County Civil Defense Organization searched for the dogs. They had the unwanted assitance of scores of armed volunteers.

Hazelwood Police Commissioner O. T. McGregor said 15 dogs were killed and two captured in the roundup which ended late Saturday. All were stray mongrels, McGregor said. Five of the dogs which were killed were identified by Jones as members of the pack which attacked the boy.

Jones said he just happened to walk up on the dogs in the field.

"I didn't have anything in my hand and I hollered at them," he said. "They snarled and started going after me. I would judge there were 6 or 8 dogs in the pack, about 3 pretty good sized ones.

"I ran back to a fence and picked up a piece of three-quarter-inch pipe and when I grabbed that, they took off. They weren't too scared though."

Jones said he saw the same pack of dogs several times before and believed they were strays. He was too excited to notice whether they had collars.

Neighbors said a pack of seven to 10 dogs was seen in the neighborhood recently and their prescence reported to the Animal Protective Assn. Jones expressed the opinion the dogs were unwanted pets dumped along the highway.

5 Killed, 6 Injured In Head-On Crash

MONMOUTH, Ill. (AP) — Five teenagers whizzed south in a car one had received as a high school graduation gift.

A workman and his family drove north on the same road.

They collided head-on in a crash that killed five and injured six others.

The time was shortly after Friday midnight. The place was U.S. 67 four miles north of Monmouth.

It was there that tragedy snuffed out the youthful elation that comes with a diploma and the happiness that accompanies a laid-off workers return to his job.

Killed were Larry Dean Earp, 16, of Little York, and Mrs. Mandy Logsdon, 35, and two of her children, Duard W., 8, and Robin, 8 months, and Charles Lee, 18, of rural Monmouth. Lee died Saturday night in Monmouth Hospital. The others died at the scene.

Jerry Perrin, 19, of Little York, was injured cirtically and was taken to the University of Iowa Hospital in Iowa City, Iowa. Hospitalized in Monmouth were Duard Logsdon Sr., 57; his son, Stanley, 11; Bernard Brown, 16, son of Mrs. Logsdon by a previous marriage; and Dean Talbott, 18, and Bill Tempero, 15, both of Little York.

Earp was a distant cousin of Wyatt Earp, who left Illinois in the 19th Century to win abiding fame as a fast-drawing marshal in the West.

Young Earp and Lee were graduated by Little York High School Friday night. They were joined by three others, young Perrin, Talbott and Tempero.

Earp had been given a car as a graduation gift. It carried him on his last ride.

Little York is a village northwest of Monmouth. It is about 15 miles away by road.

Mrs. Logsdon loaded her four children into the family car and drove into Monmouth to pick up Logsdon at the end of his night trick at the Western Stoneware Co. He had returned to the job a week ago after having been laid off last winter.

State police gave this account:

Logsdon, bound north, attempted to across the left lane of the highway and turn into a dirt road. Earps auto, bound south at high speed, smashed into it.

The impact tossed some of the bodies as much as 25 feet.

Logsdon, in the hospital, said bright lights on a car behind him had confused his judgment of the distance of Earps approaching automobile.

Seize Another Batch Of Arms Destined For Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Another batch of military equipment apparently destined for use in the uneasy Caribbean area was seized by Miami detectives Saturday.

An automobile loaded with 5,000 rounds of ammunition, machetes and field tents was grabbed and its driver, Aroldo Fernandez Lieges, 23, was jailed. Unconfirmed reports said the raiding officers narrowly missed another car loaded with arms.

The arrests followed a roundup of 13 persons, including the Dominican Republic's consul general, Friday in an alleged plot to arm foes of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Customs agents seized a C47 transport plane being loaded with arms and ammunition at Miami International airport and said the shipment was intended for anti-Castro forces in the Dominican Republic.

The Miami Herald quoted unidentified Cuban sources in Miami as saying Friday's seizure of 13 persons and a C47 transport plane loaded with arms and ammunition may have upset the timetable of a Cuban counter-revolution.

These sources said an attack against Castro had been set for the first part of June but now would be delayed.

The arms taken by customs agents, however, amounted to only a small fraction of the military equipment already put into the hands of the expeditionary force in Santo Domingo, these sources added.

In Havana, Cuba's defense minister said the Miami raids proved that followers of Fulgencio Batista, ousted president of Cuba, are preparing for a counterattack from the Dominican Republic, where Batista lives in exile.

DULLES' CONDITION REMAINS CRITICAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the fourth straight day, the State Department said Saturday it had nothing new to report on the condition of John Foster Dulles.

The most recent medical bulletin on the condition of the former secretary, gravely ill with cancer, was issued on Tuesday. It said Dulles continued to grow weaker.

Coastal Areas In Texas Swamped By Cloudbursts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cloudbursts swamped the Texas coastal area Saturday.

The downpours set off flash floods in Houston and other areas.

Rain of more than three inches turned some Houston streets into small rivers. Stranded motorists were evacuated by rowboats.

The heaviest fall reported was 6.12 inches in Woodsboro in Refugio County. Streets there were inundated but damage was slight.

Rains ranging from 5 to 5.35 inches were reported in Bonneyview and Bayside areas north of Corpus Christi.

The shower and thunderstorm pattern extended from the Texas Gulf Coast eastward to the middle and south Atlantic states.

Patches of rain appeared on the weather map from Wisconsin eastward into Pennsylvania and New York State.

Thunderstorms also were reported along the Rockies from Montana southward into New Mexico.

Snow accompanied a shower in Elko, Nev.

Herter Can Get Tough With Reds, But Friends Give Him Trouble

Editor's Note — The new U. S. Secretary of State, Christian A. Herter, has now been at the international negotiating table in Geneva for two weeks in his first major task. In the following dispatch, John M. Hightower, Associated Press diplomatic correspondent from Washington, gives an appraisal of the man and the job he has done.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

GENEVA (AP)—Gentle, friendly Christian A. Herter gave the answer here this week to one of the big questions about his ability as secretary of state. He can get tough with the Soviets.

But Herter still has to prove whether he can, when necessary, get tough with his allies. For clearly the new secretary does not like to fight with his friends.

In the harsh realities of coalition diplomacy this seems to be one of the big weaknesses in the Western camp at Geneva right now. Periodically someone has to assert strong leadership to overcome Western differences, and the only man wholly qualified by national power and prestige to do the job is the U. S. secretary of state.

Another question still to be answered about Herter is whether he can swing quickly and accurately enough when the Soviet Union's Andrei Gromyko throws him a fast curve, which he did a few days ago.

Christian Archibald Herter, still addressed by old friends as "Governor" from his years in the Massachusetts State House, has been director of U. S. foreign policy for just one month. It has been a month that would have taxed the ingenuity and endurance of his renowned predecessor, John Foster Dulles, in the years before Dulles was stricken with cancer.

Herter, 64, had scarcely taken down the shingle proclaiming him to be "Undersecretary of State" and nailed up the new sign "Secretary of State" when he had to catch a plane for Paris and conferences with British, French and West German foreign ministers, mapping plans for the Geneva conference.

He had a week at home and was off again for Geneva and a final check up on strategy before the West opened formal discussions with Gromyko May 11. Then, alongside Selwyn Lloyd of Britain and Maurice Couve de Murville of France, Herter began to learn, the hard way, what he was up against.

It was Gromyko's campaign for Western recognition of Communist East Germany that first spurred Herter to lash out. In a meeting at the Palace of Nations the first week of the conference, Herter looked Gromyko in the eye and told him in straight simple language that Gromyko was trying to delude people when he said the German Red regime was winning Western acceptance here.

Gromyko's drive on Red Germany's behalf produced an action a week ago which obviously irritated Herter. The U.S. secretary considered he had an arrangement with Gromyko, the day's chairman, to speak first. Instead, Gromyko called on Red Germany's Lothar Bolz. Herter was caught off guard. He made no protest at that time, but he and his advisers agreed Gromyko must not be permitted to get by with any more fast ones like that.

Herter found occasion to tell off Gromyko three days later. The Soviet minister made a long speech in which he accused NATO of planning aggressive war.

Herter, characteristically addressing himself directly to Gromyko by name, rebuked the Soviet minister and told him there should be no more such speechmaking. He declared Gromyko would poison the rather friendly note on which the conference has been conducted to date.

Herter's friends and allies received word of these actions of his with considerable quiet enthusiasm. None had questioned his general personal and political qualifications for the job he took over from Dulles. But all have had reservations about his ability to deal with Gromyko and other Soviet experts in the tricky arts of international relations. Toughness, speed of reaction, imagination are all required, and Herter's friends feel he is catching on fast.

Demo Spending Bills Appear Headed For Presidential Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats apparently are heading toward a collision with presidential vetoes that could snarl up housing, airport and depressed areas legislation for many weeks.

A Senate-House conference committee, meeting next week, is likely to agree on a compromise housing bill that President Eisenhower may fire back at Congress with a veto.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate Republican leader, said he can't forecast what the President will do. But Dirksen said if Eisenhower wants to dramatize his campaign to hold down spending, he will find widespread support for a veto.

Democrats will attempt to override such a veto and enact the bill into law. But the odds appear now to be against their mustering the required two-thirds of those voting in both houses.

If an attempt to override fails, Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) said he will urge his Democratic colleagues not to compromise.

"I'm for standing firm," Douglas said in an interview.

"Let the builders come to us. The President is trying to use them against us now in an effort to kill off a small amount of public housing and urban renewal."

Dirksen said that "If there is no housing bill, the Democrats will have to take the responsibility."

Eisenhower asked Congress for an additional six billion dollars in authority for the Federal Housing Administration to insure mortgage loans. The agency is scraping the bottom of the barrel now, with a consequent threat to the nation's home building program.

But Eisenhower has opposed provisions of the bill passed by the House on Thursday which would authorize a three-year, 1½-billion-dollar urban renewal or slum clearance program, 400 million dollars for college housing and 100 million for rental dwellings for elderly persons.

The expenditure price tag put on the House bill was $2,100,000,000. The Senate bill passed earlier would cost a half billion more. Neither of these figures takes into account the FHA's insurance authority, since it involves no direct Treasury payment. FHA is self-supporting.

Both Senate and House bills envision outlays so far in excess of Eisenhower's requests that a veto seems inevitable.

There have been indications that Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) and Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas would have preferred cutting back the amounts in the hope of avoiding a veto.

But other Democrats who want to challenge the President are pushing for passage of not only the housing bill but an airport aid measure approved by both houses and a Senate-passed depressed areas bill.

These Democrats maintain that vetoes of such measures would lend weight to their contention that the administration is more interested in balancing the budget than in meeting what they regard as the needs of the country.

There obviously will be housing legislation of some sort enacted before Congress quits. Neither party can afford to let it be said that the economic recovery was jolted by a slump in housing construction because of a failure of Congress and the President to get together.

TIMID CAT LOSES BATTLE TO BIRDS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Snookie, a timid cat who made a tactical error, is losing the battle of the birds.

Four days ago, he made the mistake of taking a swipe at a blue-jay in the neighborhood. Ever since then, whenever he sticks his head out the door, a flock of vengeful jays swoop down on him.

"It's the silliest thing I ever heard of," Mrs. Leon Ervin, his mistress, exclaimed. "I tried to get him outside today while I was hanging out the wash, and he wouldn't budge."

Whenever the birds catch the 16-pound, black and gray tomcat off guard, she reported, "he just ducks his head and sits down. He's a house cat, not a fighter."

Saturday Mrs. Ervin called the police, but they, too, were stymied.

"They said they can't shoot those birds," Mrs. Ervin said.

Big Four Agree On Secret Talks

To Clear Way For Summit Conference

GENEVA (AP) — The Big Four were reported virtually agreed Saturday night on beginning a phase of hard, secret bargaining to clear the way for an East-West summit conference.

Some sort of standstill arrangement between the Soviet Union and the West for disputed Berlin appeared to be the minimum price American, British and French foreign ministers will demand for agreeing to set up the top level parley proposed for this summer.

Intensified behind scenes activity the past few days, according to senior Western diplomats here, suggested these further developments may be near:

The statesmen probably will leave their Palace of Nations conference table for a series of informal talks on the grave issues that divide them.

In these exchanges the Western powers intend calling on Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to clarify his ideas about the sort of temporary solution he foresees for Berlin pending an East-West agreement to reunite all Germany.

At some point in the coming week or two the Western ministers, for their part, are likely to submit a counterproposition of their own for a stopgap Berlin arrangement.

Gromyko also will be asked to spell out the West's package of proposals on Berlin, all-Germany and a European security system.

An itemized list of negotiable issues, agreed by East and West, then could form the basis for a separate and careful new study to narrow differences in preparation for the summit.

Gromyko for his part is expected to call openly for transferring to the summit work-program current American-British-Soviet negotiations for a pact to end nuclear weapon testing.

The British delegation has spread word that American Secretary of State Christian A. Herter may act Monday to obtain suspension—or a series of suspensions—of formal conference proceedings.

Herter is due to preside at Monday's session. He was British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd's luncheon guest Friday. The Briton has long wanted to give secret diplomacy a full trial here. But he has been unwilling to take the lead. Already he is under some suspicion by his French and West German colleagues for having had a dozen or so private chats with Gromyko, some announced, some unannounced.

But American delegation sources reported Herter has no intention of acting alone. Any move clearly would have to be agreed upon by all the Western ministers, including Maurice Couve de Murville of France and Heinrich von Bretano of West Germany.

Presbyterians Head Into Row Over Doctrine

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A doctrinal firecracker may explode at the final session of the United Presbyterian General Assembly Wednesday.

At issue are doubts about Mary giving virgin birth to Jesus, as advanced by Dr. Thoeodore A. Gill, president-elect of San Francisco Theological Seminary at San Anselmo, Calif.

Convention leaders are hoping, but are not confident, that no one will light the fuse when the report of the committee on theological education reaches the floor.

It is expected to contain a recommendation that the assembly confirm the election by the Seminary Board last summer of Dr. Gill as president.

Dr. Gill, an ordained Presbyterian minister and former college professor, was managing editor of Christian Century, nondenominational Protestant weekly magazine, at the time he was chosen to head the seminary. He has filled the presidency since last Aug. 1.

Church rules require that its highest ruling body, the General Assembly, must confirm his selection before he can drop "elect" from his title.

Four months before his election to the presidency, Dr. Gill wrote an article in the Christian Century which expressed doubts about the doctrine of the virgin birth.

Some conservative elements in the United Presbyterian Church contend that Dr. Gill's questioning of the virgin birth makes him unfit to head a school to train ministers. Liberal factions in the denomination defend Gill.

Hungarian Refugee, Beset By Misfortune, Takes Life

CHICAGO (AP)—"Suicide," the verdict read.

The six-man coroner's jury had no problem deciding how Sandor Torma, 30-year-old Hungarian refugee, came to his death.

The facts were simple. Torma, a laboratory technician, had given himself a quick-acting sedative, then looped his belt around his neck and tied it to a rafter in the basement of his home. The sedative put him to sleep and Torma strangled. It happened Thursday.

The simple verdict, decided Saturday, and a brief account of how Torma came to his death, ended the investigation.

The Torma's widow, Frieda, 26, mother of two daughters, Edith, 16 months and Susan, 5 months, the verdict of suicide is a misnomer.

Her husband died, she tells you, because of debt, poverty, hunger, and failure to find a measure of security for his family in the world's most prosperious nation.

She will tell you—as she told the coroner's jury—that the family came to the United States three years ago from Budapest, Hungary, seeking freedom from tyranny. The rest of the story goes like this:

Torma got a job as laboratory technician at St. Francis Hospital in suburban Evanston at $400 a month. Three months ago he cut his right arm on a window and it was permanently disabled. The family then was $1,500 in debt.

A few days before his death, Torma was rehired by the hospital. But because of his injured arm he was unable to perform his former duties and was given another job at $200 a month.

The night of his death, Torma came home and asked for food.

"We have nothing but bread," Mrs. Torma told her husband. "There's no meat, no money."

Torma went to the basement. Mrs. Torma went looking for him later and found his body.

Alex Loeffler, deputy coroner, who conducted the inquest, asked Mrs. Torma about funeral arrangements for her husband.

Mrs. Torma emptied her purse on the coroner's desk.

"That's all I have," she said. It added up to 26 cents.

AFL-CIO Attacks Senate Labor Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO blasted the Senate labor bill Saturday as a mess and a monstrosity, and said it will battle the measure in the House.

Following up its executive council's declaration of war last Wednesday, the big labor federation issued a 4,000-word critique of the legislation it supported in its original form and said "a more detailed analysis of the weakness and dangers in the bill" will follow.

The AFL-CIO statement aimed its fire at what it called "many hastily drafted and ill considered provisions" written into the bill during the nine days of Senate floor debate last month.

"Under the guise of 'labor reform,' the bill would seriously weaken the labor movement and hamper it in many ways from acting as an effective collective bargaining instrumentality in dealing with employes," the critique said.

"Virtually ignored in the bill are the many instances of improper conduct by employers and their 'middlemen and of their participation in instances of corrupt behavior on the part of some union officers and employes which the McClellan committee and other congressional investigations have brought to light."

The AFL-CIO repeated its stand for legislation which would "aid the honest trade union movement in the elimination of corruption from labor-management affairs." But it said the bill passed by the Senate April 25 is aimed primarily at union regulation in burdensome and harassing detail.

It denounced a toned-down bill of rights proposal sponsored by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark), chairman of the Senate rackets probers, as an invitation to dissident union mzmbers to disrupt and destroy unions.

The bill's definition of who may be admitted to union membership, the statement said, opens the way to "Communists, agents-provocateurs, company spies working for employers or employer "middlemen,' instigators of 'wildcat' strikes and dual unionists."

A provision to ban organizational picketing where the union has lost an election in the last nine months or where the employer has recognized another union also came under fire. Declaring its opposition to any effort to extend restrictions on peaceful picketing, the AFL-CIO said this section "could serve to protect racketeers by encouraging and protecting collusive deals between corrupt employers and racketeers preying upon the union movement."

Saying the various enforcement devices "conflict, overlap and duplicate each other," the statement said the bill is "an administrative monstrosity."

"From the standpoint of a public official seeking to administer the bill, it is a mess," it said. "From the standpoint of unions and union officials covered by it, its cumulative effects could be tyrannous."

The statement said AFL-CIO President George Meany will present more detailed objections when he testifies before the House Labor Committee June 3.

Hoover Warns Comintern Busy Under New Name

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Communist International Comintern has been revived under a new name, a Senate group reported Saturday.

Another warning on the Communist threat came from FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. He said U.S. Communists have renewed their drive to form a new youth group and infiltrate basic American industries.

Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss), chairman of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, released a documented staff study of his group saying the Comintern has been revitalized as the "conference of Communist and workers' parties.

"Revival of the Comintern under this new name means that the Soviet Communists are once again tightening the control they have always held of Communist parties throughout the world, including the Communist party, U.S.A.," Eastland said. "Elaborate attempts have been made to hide this central domination by the Kremlin, particularly in recent years. But by their own recent statements, Soviet leaders inadvertently have put us on notice of the resurgence of the Comintern.

Hoover made his comments on communism to Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla) during an interview recorded for Florida radio and television stations.

EAST STATE STREET

TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY TRANSPORTATION—Monorail trains, like one in sketch, will whisk passengers from downtown Seattle, Wash., to the grounds of the city's "Century 21 Exposition," a world's fair opening in May, 1961. The five-million-dollar system, publicly owned, will be the first monorail line installed in a U.S. city to solve a mass transportation problem. Four-car, 96-passenger units will travel at 60 m.p.h.

Frank Sinatra and Shirley MacLaine listen to an expostulating Dean Martin, their gambling friend in "Some Came Running," MGM film version of the best-selling novel by James Jones, author of "From Here to Eternity." The drama of a group of people in a typical American small town, searching for love, also starts Martha Hyer, Arthur Kennedy, Nancy Gates and Leora Dana. Opens tonight at The 67 Drive-In Theatre.

Leducs Star In Ice Review Here June 1

What promises an exciting entertainment event will take place at the High School Gym in Jacksonville on Monday, June 1, when the International Ice Review unfolds its portable ice rink and its troup of thirty professional ice-skaters. The show is sponsored by the Jacksonville Exchange club. One of the featured comedy acts in the show is the Leduce.

The Leducs are virtually international commuters in the ice skating world. They have just returned from a tour of Canada and the United States. Prior to that they skated in Germany in the Bavarian Alps resort area.

These zany novelty skaters flip, twist and balance over the hard ice that ordinary tumblers would risk only on a well-padded mat. The precision of their work is, needless to say, the result of weeks and months of practice. Practice is required even on vacation so that timing on tricks will not be lost.

Paul formerly skated with his brother, known professionally as the Leducs Brothers. They starred with major ice reviews and hotel shows throughout the country. Paul works as the bottom half of the acrobatic team and has twice had to change partners due to his partners addition of pounds until they outweighed him. Paul duplicated the act with his wife, Blonda, and they have the only act of its kind in the professional ice skating world.

The Leducs met at a ski resort in Germany. Paul was stationed there with the U. S. Armed Forces and Blonda was associated with the European Exchange System. Paul originally hails from Montreal and Blonda comes from Columbus, Ohio.

The ice show will give performances at 2:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. Tickets are priced at $1.00 for children, and $1.55 for adults. Doors to the Gym will open one hour before each performance.

'WE DECREE'

The custom of kings using the pronoun "we" in speaking of themselves is a survival from the Roman Empire, when there were two emperors, one in Italy and one in Constantinople. They issued identical decrees under joint authority, hence the use of the plural, "we."

A report states that the bluefish kills at least ten other fish each day, according to Encyclopedia Britannica.

Two Cars Collide On Route 36 At Lynnville Road

Six persons escaped without injury in a two car collision at the intersection of Routes 36-54 and the Lynnville Road, west of the city, Friday afternoon about 4 o'clock.

According to police reports, a car driven by Jessie L. Bool, 455 South Clay, pulled onto the highway from the side road into the path of a car driven by John J. Schofield, Route 3, Winchester. Passengers in the Schofield auto, Wanda McDade, Paul Garrison, Shirley Worrall, Verne Smith and Velma Boes, all of Winchester, escaped injury.

Mrs. Bool was issued a ticket for running a stop sign by State Trooper Edmund Heyer who attended at the scene of the accident.

Both autos received extensive damage.

Court Hears Recording Of Statement In Strangling

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Kenneth Archie Merriam was quoted in court Friday as saying Mrs. Wanda Brogdon talked him into strangling her two small sons.

"It was her idea," he was quoted as saying.

The quotation was in a recording of his statement to police which was played at a Superior Court hearing before a jury on the question of the sanity of Merraim and Mrs. Brogdon. If found sane, they must stand trial.

Virgil Brogdon Jr., 5, and David, 3, were strangled in the mountains east of here May 2 about two weeks after they arrived here with their mother and Merriam from Rockford, Ill.

Merriam said, in the recording, that Mrs. Brogdon consoled him after he strangled the boys by saying: "You don't need to cry, honey."

Mrs. Brogdon, in a recording of what she told police, said that Virgil Jr. had asked her whether Merriam was going to kill him and that she replied: "Naw, he ain't going to kill you.

She said: "I wasn't too mad at the boys, I was sorry for them." She said she sat in the car with the radio on while Merriam took the boys out one at a time and strangled them.

The sanity trial was asked by the couple, who are charged with first degree murder.

Driver Pinned Upsidedown In Truck Accident

WHITE HALL—John Fraley of Hettick, driver of a Prairie Farms milk truck, sustained injuries on Wednesday morning, May 20, in a freak accident southwest of the city. His helper who was riding with him at the time was uninjured. The truck was owned by Edward Heying.

According to reports the accident occurred about 8 o'clock Wednesday morning near the farm home of Mrs. Mildred L. Forsting, about two and a half miles southwest of White Hall. The truck is said to have been traveling along an open stretch of level road when a front spring gave way, causing it to turn over and land upside down.

Fraley was pinned in the truck, head downward, until help arrived and it took about 45 minutes to release him. Orval Lockhart and Kendall Seely who were working nearby and Ed Westerhold succeeded in releasing Mr. Fraley, about the same time a repair truck from a local garage arrived on the scene. Mr. Westerhold took the injured man for first aid and then on to an Alton hospital where he is reported as having a fractured shoulder and a possible concussion.

He Learned To Make Change Selling Papers

A former Jacksonville Journal Courier street salesman is doing quite well for himself in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Leo L. Quinlan, who when a boy picked up his first business experience by selling copies of The Courier, is reported well on his way to a successful business career at Santa Barbara, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Quinlan, both formerly of this city, have been appointed general managers of Trevillian Investments in Santa Barbara.

Mr. and Mrs. Quinlan went to work for the Trevillians in April, 1958, as assistants at Bam's Motor Court, and in August of that year became its manager. In February, 1959, they added the Rancho Grande to their managership, and on June 1 will assume responsibilities of the Sombrero Motel.

The Trevillian Investment Co. during the past two years has acquired motel properties costing $750,000.

Mr. Quinlan was employed by J. Capps & Sons in Jacksonville from 1925 to 1942, after which he spent three years as a supervisor at the Sangamo Ordnance plant at Illipolis. Mr. and Mrs. Quinlan have engaged in business enterprises since 1945 when they moved to California.

LINE OF DEFENSE—American forces in West Germany are on the move constantly, practicing the strategic actions they would take to repel any aggression from the East. An important weapon in the free world arsenal is the Matador guided missile. It has a 600-mile range and is capable of carrying an atomic warhead. Above, a group of jet-powered, subsonic Matadors moves along a German country road. Their actual firing sites are secret and never actually reached—in practice.

No parking will be allowed on the main drives but cars will be allowed to park on east side of the cemetery. Registration and donations will be received at the west gate. At Rose Hill cemetery, all cars will enter from the west gate and leave at south gate.

The cemetery committee is composed of Mayor George Rives, Jr., Floyd Frazier, chairman, Fred L. Bauer, treasurer, Frank Greer and Kenneth Cummins.

1,026 Jersey Residents Have Chest X-Rays

JERSEYVILLE — William A. Steelman, president of the Jersey County Tuberculosis Association, has reported that 1,026 persons availed themselves of the opportunity to have a free chest x-ray during the visit of the State Health Department Chest X-ray Unit to Jersey county last week.

During this visit no x-rays were offered to persons under 30 years of age except those having a positive tuberculin test. For this reason the total figure was slightly less than that for former visits. Results of the x-rays will be mailed to residents at a later date.

There were 100 x-rays taken in Grafton and 65 at Fieldon during the one-day visit to these places. During the three days the unit was in Jerseyville 800 tests were taken.

Members of the American Legion were in charge of registration in Grafton and at Fieldon the women of the Home Bureau Unit took care of this work. In Jerseyville registration was in charge of members of the Jerseyville Woman's Club and the Jerseyville Junior Woman's Club.

Amnuay Tapingkae Speaks Of Thailand To Woman's Club

ALEXANDER—The final meeting for the club year of the Alexander Woman's Club, was held Wednesday, May 13, at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Luken. The May luncheon was served at 12:30 p.m. to 16 members and guests.

The president, Mrs. Leo Walsh, invited Mrs. J. J. Proffitt to ask the blessing. After the meal the president welcomed the guests and thanked the committees and hostess for the privilege of meeting in her home.

Mrs. Walsh graciously greeted the mothers and extended special greetings to our club mother, Mrs. Louisa Ridder and to the oldest mother of a club member present, Mrs. Laura Ruble. Each was presented a corsage by Mrs. Frank Foster.

The secretary, Mrs. Earl Muckleston, read the minutes of the last May luncheon. She then introduced Mrs. Ben Negus who gave a reading from prose, "Heaven is in My Hand" and poems written by Lew Sarett and Emily Dickinson. Mrs. Negus in turn introduced Amnuay Tapingkae, senior student at Illinois College.

Amnuay who is from Thailand said his homeland lies to the south of China and is relative in size to our four states, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan and as these, not too densely populated. The people, derived from a heterogeneous race in China, gradually moved into the country previously known as Siam, meaning black. "Siam" having a rather bad connotation, the people preferred the name, Thailand, meaning free. The Thai people pride themselves on the fact that they had not known colonization. They engage in farming to a great degree.

Religion is chiefly Buddhist, about 85 per cent, also Moslem, and now in growing numbers Christian. In fact, it is a hope of many people that their ruler, who is now required by constitutional proclamation to be Buddhist, may some day be able to declare freedom in this area as well.

Amnuay brought greetings from his people and hoped that he, a member of the common people, might some day help to influence their educational growth opportunities, so that a greater proportion of the population might enjoy this advantage. Now because of lack in facilities, teachers and schools, many must be preferred entrance in the Thai educational system even though qualifying by examination. The best of both English and American is used in their school system.

Membesr were interested to learn that Mother's Day is recognized in their nation. It is a special day with bus travel furnished free for mothers to enjoy the occasion. Amnuay also gave us a poem spoken in his language which he interpreted that we might have the meaning.

Amnuay felt that foreign is not a word to be used if we would cultivate better human relations. He informed us that the Student Christian Council of this country had adopted the word International Student in this reference, that a better feeling of understanding be created. Amnuay's manner of friendliness and good will was evident throughout his talk which was most effectually illustrated by use of a large global world, turned to stress various points of interest.

He pointed out that his land, half a world away, should not now hold for us a feeling of great distance. Boundaries are now no longer barriers, these having been shrunk by travel made easy and our special interest in Thailand drawing us ever closer together.

Roll call was the introduction of guests: Mrs. Howard Burch, Mrs. Leonard Bergschneider, Mrs. Wesley Petefish, Mrs. George Kemp, Mrs. Laura Ruble, Mrs. W. J. Hermes, Mrs. Hettie Strawn, Mrs. Byron Strawn and Candy, Mrs. Josephine Walsh, Mrs. Francis Kaiser, Mrs. Robert Joy, Mrs. Ben Negus and Amnuay Tapingkae of Prince Royal's College, Chiangmai, Thailand.

Jacksonville Police Work With State To Prevent Accidents

Police Chief Ike Flynn said Saturday the police department is cooperating fully in the statewide Traffic Condition Yellow alert, which started Friday.

The Yellow alert is a traffic safety program aimed at reducing accidents during the Memorial Day holiday.

Sponsored by the Illinois Division of Traffic Safety, the week-long pre-holiday alert is designed to warn motorists of the added driving hazards they will encounter during the holiday because of heavier traffic.

State and local safety authorities believe much can be gained by emphasizing safe holiday driving before the holiday actually begins.

Enforcement agencies, newspapers, radio and television stations in this area will work together closely during the Condition Yellow period to stress the importance of safe, sober and alert driving.

In announcing that his department will participate actively in the alert, Chief Flynn said prime targets for enforcement in this area during the holiday will be drunk drivers, speeders and those who fail to yield right of way when required.

These three violations were involved in most of the 27 traffic deaths in Illinois during the Memorial Day weekend last year, he explained.

The Chief said his department's cars will be on patrol regularly during the Yellow alert watching for persons whose careless driving creates danger for other motorists.

He issued a personal appeal to all drivers to "drive with caution at all times and above all, don't drive after drinking."

Robert A. Campbell, state coordinator of traffic safety, called on Illinois drivers to be especially alert for out of state motorists traveling to the 500-mile race at Indianapolis the last of this week.

"These drivers may have driven long distances and because of this they may not be as alert as they should be," Campbell explained.

He urged all drivers to cooperate in the Yellow alert by "observing all traffic laws and by making driving a full time job."

The Yellow alert will be followed immediately by Traffic Condition Red, which will last from 6 p.m. May 29 through midnight Sunday. During the 54-hour period, lawmen in every corner of the state will join in a concentrated program of strict enforcement.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP) — Successive sharp declines on Thursday and Friday left the butcher hog market 25 to 50 cents lower for the week. Sows were steady.

The setbacks followed several days of steady to higher prices which on Tuesday boosted the average price to $16.69, the highest since April 8, but at the end of the week it was estimated at $16.

The price weakness coincided with the sharply increased supply after Wednesday and after the top price had climbed to $18, the highest peak since in January.

However, the supply under 210 lb weights was less than demand most days.

Cattle offerings were down about 5 per cent at Chicago this week and were slightly less than for the previous week at the 12 major markets. But, percentages of grades and classes were little changed with most of the steer supply grading high good and choice.

Trade was rather slow throughout the period and slaughter steers over 1,100 lbs were steady to 50 cents lower. Lighter weights were mostly steady.

The sheep supply was the smallest for any week since last July and slaughter lambs prices early in the week hit their highest levels since last October. On Wednesday, however, prices weakened as much as 50 cents, the first setback this month but lamb prices finished the week steady to 50 cents higher.

CHICAGO (AP) — (USDA) — Here is a summary for the week of the hog, cattle and sheep markets with estimated receipts for today:

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market churned irregularly to another gain this week amid signs that it was tiring.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks touched a new record of $230.20 on the final session and had a net gain of $1.00 on the week despite a couple of losing sessions.

But the week's volume slipped to 15,969,910 shares compared with the previous week's 18,115,455 and was the lowest in six weeks.

A selling squall slashed the huge gains of space age stocks. Tobaccos were hit by a new lung cancer scare. Sugars declined on news of the agrarian reform program in Cuba. Drugs were upset by a brokerage house advisory.

Rails, however, staged their biggest one-day rally since October 1957. Industrials showed selective strength.

Wall Street technicians noted that for several weeks there has been a tendency for volume to diminish on upward moves and to increase while prices are falling. Some brokers report a considerable number of customers with large credit balances, meaning that they are largely out of the market, possibly until such time as a decline makes stock prices attractive to them again.

The U.S. government bond market posted its first advance in seven weeks this week but corporates continued to slide lower for the eighth straight week.

Observers called the government market's slight rise a technical adjustment rather than a rally.

Trading for the week declined to $26,099,000 par value on the New York Stock Exchange from $30,000,000 the previous week and $28,525,200 for the corresponding week in 1958.

SEVERAL GRAIN FUTURES SUFFER FROM SETBACKS

CHICAGO (AP)—Several grain futures contracts which only a few weeks ago were near high prices for the season finished this week closer to their season lows.

The entire list declined this week with wheat and rye leading the setbacks, all over two cents a bushel. July rye was down four cents and wheat more than three.

The steadiest grain was corn, as it has been for the past several weeks. Corn declined mostly minor fractions as did the new crop soybeans.

The weakness was ascribed mainly to crop and weather reports, both increasingly bearish near the end of the week. But there also was a notable slackening of both domestic and export buying.

Comprehensive private surveys showed small grain crops to be generally in excellent condition even before reports of good rainfall over most of the Great Plains.

Wheat futures closed the week 2⅝-3¼ cents a bushel lower, July $1.83¾-⅞; corn ⅛-⅝ lower, July $1.26¼-¼; oats ⅝-1⅞ lower, July old type contract 63⅝-½; rye 2½-4¼ lower, July $1.22¼-22; soybeans ⅛-1 cent lower, July $2.26¾.

Soviet Protests U.S. Rocket Arms To NATO Nations

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union told the United States Saturday that arming of NATO countries with nuclear weapons and missiles "entailed extremely dangerous consequences for peace" and conflicted with the aims of the Geneva Big Four conference.

The news agency Tass said a Soviet note especially singled out the arming of West Germany and expressed hope the United States would refrain from any action "that might increase international tension."

The note to the United States was delivered to the U. S. Charge d'Affaires by Vasily Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister. A similar note was handed to the West German ambassador, Hans Kroll.

It earlier had been reported that notes went to all ambassadors of North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries in Moscow, but later advices said notes were sent only to the United States and West Germany.)

Tass said it was a reply to U.S. government note of May 8.

"The Soviet government has restated that the measures carried out by the United States to speed up the arming of some NATO countries, and in particular the Federal Republic of Germany, with nuclear weapons and missiles entailed extremely dangerous consequences for peace and were incompatible with the tasks before the conference of the foreign ministers and the summit conference," Tass said.

The note to the United States, Tass went on, "pointed to the aggressive nature of the measures carried out by the United States with respect to some NATO countries, and in particular to the federal German republic.' It said they could not help in improving the international situation but could "lead to a serious aggravation of international relations."

In the note to West Germany, the Soviet government declared the Bonn government, "by involving Western Germany in the nuclear missile race, was throwing down the gauntlet to all peoples acting against the danger of a new war," Tass reported.

"The facts show," the note said, "that the government of the federal republic of Germany was carrying through the nuclear and missile rearmament of Western Germany with frantic haste, determined not only to worsen the over-all international situation in this way but also to complicate the Geneva foreign ministers talks.'

COMPULSORY DOG VACCINATION CUTS INSIDENCE OF RABIES

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A program of compulsory vaccination of dogs, begun in 1952, has reduced the incidence of rabies from 322 in that year to nine in 1958, the State Health and Agriculture departments reported Saturday.

The number of cases in the intervening years was 174 in 1953, 206 in 1954, 41 in 1955, 59 in 1956, and 21 in 1957.

Dr. Thomas G. Scott, head of wildlife research at the Illinois Natural History Survey, Urbana, said a continuation of the vaccination program should remove dogs from the epidemic cycle. However, he said, certain wild mammals will continue to harbor the disease.

Syracuse football coach Ben Schwartzwalder will coach the Blue team in the annual Blue-Gray game next December.

State Legislature

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The economy bloc of the Illinois House waits in ambush this week for more appropriation measures by Gov. William G. Stratton's administration.

Last week the bloc—a coalition of dissident Republicans and Democrats—scored a slight financial but big psychological victory by whacking $12,500 in travel expenses from the budget of the State Labor Department.

Among the money bills on amendment stage when the House convenes Tuesday will be a 34½ million dollar appropriation for the Public Health Department. Rep. G. William Horsley (R-Springfield) who led the budget cutters last week, has amendments ready in an attempt to trim a quarter of a million dollars from this figure.

Welfare Probe

On other legislative fronts, an investigation of bidding and purchasing practices of the State Welfare Department will enter the windup phase, and a move is expected to be made by Stratton's Senate forces to pass a sales tax increase measure and sent it to the House.

The House welfare probers have scheduled appearances by Dr. Otto Bettag, department director, and Irving M. Karoll, a big Chicago supplier of institutional equipment. They also will attempt, by means of a second subpoena, to question a Chicago manufacturer who failed last week to answer the committee's first summons.

He is William Z. Goldman, president of Lincoln Felt Co. Rep. Abner Mikva (D-Chicago), committee chairman, charged last week that Goldman supplied Karoll with used bedding material for distribution to state institutions.

Bettag To Testify

Bettag and Karoll will be asked to comment on testimony by John Corcoran, a top Bettag aide, concerning alleged favored treatment of Karoll in the awarding of contracts. Mikva said this week's sessions will bring the investigation to a close. A report is due by June 1.

Sales Tax Hike

The half cent increase in the sales tax was proposed by Stratton to finance grade and high school programs over the next two years. Administration leaders predict it will clear the Upper Chamber.

Major opposition, however, is expected to come in the House, where the Democratic majority is committed to a boost in corporation franchise taxes as an alternative source of revenue for schools.

Labor Bills

Two bills bitterly opposed by labor unions will be up for important committee tests in the House. One of them, to set up a committee on a state level to investigate unfair business and labor practices, was postponed reluctantly by its sponsor last week at the request of labor officials.

The other, banning coercive or "racket" picketing, was forced back on the committee docket after failing last week to muster enough strength on the floor to bypass the committee.

Racing Chairman

Meanwhile, a Senate subcommittee will look into the question of Paul Serdar's fitness to serve a second term as chairman of the Illinois Racing Board. The subcommittee was set up last week after the executive committee heard objections to Serdar's confirmation because of his sale of horses to a man subsequently charged with embezzlement.

Pack Of Dogs Kills Small Boy In St. Louis

The Animal Protective Assn. said 11 dead and two captured dogs were obviously strays and not pets.

An officer said, "They were a mangy, foul lot. You can tell a pet, and none of these were."

One dog wearing a collar was picked up but was not believed to have been in a pack. It is to be returned to its owner.

Meanwhile, county supervisor James H. J. McNary ordered a study of the county's dog catching service.

"I will ask the health department for a report on personnel and equipment now in service in the rabies control division," McNary said. "If more men and trucks are needed, they will be obtained."

Coroner Raymond Harris said he was worried about a possible rabies epidemic although none of the dogs brought in so far gave any indication of having the disease. Harris said he would attend a meeting of the North County Police Assn. Wednesday to discuss possible methods of controlling stray animals.

Cause of the trouble was not disclosed. The first postponement last Thursday was due to unfavorable weather. The weather was satisfactory Saturday.

The car was not damaged and the occupants were not injured in the plunge. A wrecker was called and pulled the car onto the road.

Deputies Dean Colwell and Andy Kitchen attended at the scene.

Hillsdale First In Californian

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Hillsdale, a big bay from Indiana, put on a gallant run to the wire Saturday to beat off a last stride challenge by Amerigo and win the $112,900 Californian at Hollywood Park.

It took a long look at the photo to seperate the two at the finish but it came up in favor of C. W. Smith's Hoosier horse by a nose. He was the heavily backed favorite.

Ying And Yang, a long shot, was third and Terrang, the second choice by a crowd estimated at 53, 000, was fourth in the field of nine

The time for the mile and one-sixteenth was 1:40 4-5.

The windup had the fans in near-hysteria as jockey Willie Shoemaker brought Amerigo, a genuine rogue from England, up on the outside to battle the rail-running Hillsdale.

Hillsdale paid $3.80, $2.80 and $2.60.

The victory was worth a net $66,800 to Hillsdale's owner and boosted the 4-year-old bay's winnings for 1959 to $270,250-ahead of the erstwhile leader, Vertex.

Vertex won the Camden Handicap at Garden State earlier this afternoon and brought his total for the year to $246,029.

Jockey Tommy Barrow on Hillsdale let the front runners burn up the track, laying back around third or fourth. Shoemaker was even further back on Amerigo.

Relief pitcher Joe Schaffernoth of the Chicago Cubs twirled for Pueblo in the Western League in 1958.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—What did James Joseph Dykes, the old repairman of baseball, do to so quickly make the Tigers respectable?

"Not much," says Jimmie Dykes, who has been in the racket for 42 years, nearly all of it in the majors. "I kept Al Kaline in center field and put Charley Maxwell in left."

Dykes says he kept Kaline in center only because the Baltimore kid had played there just once due to the fact that Harvey Kuenn, the incumbent, had been struck rather severely on the arm by a pitched ball.

"Secretly," says Dykes, "I have wanted to see Kaline in center field for five years, or since I first saw him as a freshman. Until the other day, I had no right to order or suggest it. I never could understand why an outfielder with Kaline's speed, ball hawking ability and arm was kept cornered in right field. The situation would have been the same had he played left field. I couldn't figure an outfielder like him limited by a foul line."

* * *

Baseball immediately accepted Kaline, now only 24, as a stickout when in his sophomore year he led the American League in hits with 200 and batting with .340 as he manufactured 27 homers driving in 102 runs. While Kaline, who came into the business doing everything naturally, hasn't had what could be called a bad year since, he hasn't lived up to his early foot. And last season, when his home run output dropped to 16 and the runs-batted-in to 85 as he hit .313, people began to ask, "Will Kaline ever live up to the great expectations?"

When Dykes so suddenly and dramatically assumed command of a Detroit entry which had won only two of 17 games on May 3, the first thing he did was tell Kaline, "You are going to stay in center field. Run the other fellows the hell off any ball you think you can catch."

Kaline has been doing that since and enjoying himself batting .344.

"He's been terrific," beams Dykes, "made some wonderful catches."

* * *

As Dykes explains, all Kaline ever needed to be a big ballplayer was the showcase where he belongs in center field.

"Now that he has more opportunity to exhibit his truly remarkable fielding skill, you'll hear more of him," says the man who played so much third base for Connie Mack.

When Dykes arrived in Tigertown just before the start of a double-header with the Yankees on May 3, he inquired as to the whereabouts of Charley Maxwell. He was informed that Maxwell was out with a bad finger and hadn't played much. Finding that the finger injury had healed, he stuck Maxwell in left field. Maxwell hit four home runs as the Tigers swept the double-header.

* * *

Dykes always liked Maxwell.

"I engineered a Baltimore trade for him when he was with Boston," he recalls. "When Paul Richards took my job in Baltimore, the first thing he did was trade Maxwell to Detroit.

"So, I wind up with Charley Maxwell in the end, and you know something, I may stick him in the batting order behind Kaline. Pitchers are not giving Kaline anything good to hit. With Charley's home run swing coming up they may make a little more effort to get Kaline out.

"Give this club a little hitting at first base and some relief pitching and we'll stir up trouble all the way along the route.

"The Yankees?" says Jimmie Dykes. "Now they know how the other seven have lived, and I'm enjoying it as much as anybody else."

Faculty Members Modify Free For All Bowl Setup

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Policy-making faculty representatives of the Big Ten Saturday modified the surprising free-for-all Rose Bowl setup they approved Friday.

The current Rose Bowl contract which expires with the 1960 game was dropped in a stalemated 5-5 vote. By the same standoff ballot the faculty representatives refused to remove from their regulations a clause which authorizes Rose Bowl football competition. In effect, this would allow any Big Ten team to accept a Rose Bowl invitation on its own without any conference strings attached.

Saturday, the faculty group ordered athletic directors to create a committee to devise controls for the new Rose Bowl arrangement, and appointed a faculty committee to study methods of breaking a tie vote such as caused Tuesday's complications.

Marcus Plant of Michigan explained that both the proponents and opponents of Rose Bowl play wanted to prevent a single conference school from becoming an overly consistent Rose Bowl visitor. More important, he said, they wanted to prevent any single school from "walking home with all the booty."

At present, the visiting teams Rose Bowl share of more than $400,000 is split 12 ways within the Big Ten.

Plant said the athletic directors' committee which will report at the December conference meeting will study administrative procedures and limitations to be imposed on a school which accepts a Rose Bowl invitation.

The Pittsburgh Pirates hit only one homer in their first four games this season but gave up seven.

Cards Whip Cubs, 5-1 For Sixth Triumph In Last Seven Starts

CHICAGO (AP) — Larry Jackson effectively tied up the Chicago Cubs on four hits Saturday in steering the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-1 victory.

Ken Boyer contributed his ninth home run of the year, a blast to left field catwalk, with Stan Musial aboard to give the Cards a 2-0 lead in the fourth.

It was the Cardinals sixth win in the last seven games.

Looser Dave Hillman took his third setback in five games. It was Jacson's third win against five losses.

The Cardinals clobbered Bob Porterfield, Hillman's successor, for three more runs in the sixth.

Irv Noren stroked the Cubs' first extra base hit in 29 consecutive innings, a two-out double in the sixth. Noren then scored on Ernie Banks' single.

League-Leading Braves Bow To Last-Place Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Anemic hitting Jim Hegan drove in 3 runs and Jim Owens scattered 5 hits today to give cellar dwelling Philadelphia a 4-2 win over the National League leading Milwaukee Braves.

Hegan, batting only .133 before Saturday's game, doubled home Willie Jones and Sparky Anderson in the second inning after both had walked. Then Anderson, Jones and Hegan singled in succession in the fourth for the third and winning run.

The Phillies wrapped it up in the fifth on Ed Bouchee's double and Harry Anderson's single.

Milwaukee led only once, on Johnny Logan's solo home run, his fourth of the year, in the top of the second. The other Braves' score came in the sixth on Billy Bruton's single, Ed Mathews' double and a fielder's choice by Hank Aaron.

Yankees Explode For Easy 13-5 Win Over Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — The slumbering World Champion New York Yankees issued an ominouos warning from the American League basement Saturday in crushing the Baltimore Orioles 13-5 behind a 16-hit barrage.

After skipping pre-game batting practice for the first time this season, New York looked like the bomber of old with five doubles and homers by Bill Skowron and Mickey Mantle included in the attack.

The Yanks chased Oriole starter Milt Pappas with a 4-run first inning rally and whacked Jack Harshman for 7 more runs in the next 2 frames for an 11-0 lead.

The Orioles trailed 13-0 before rookie Willie Tasby hit the first of his two homers off winning pitcher Don Larsen in the fifth inning. Tasby belted another homer—his fifth of the year—after Joe Ginsberg singled in the seventh.

Larsen uped his unbeaten record for the season to 4-0 as he scored his 11th straight victory over Baltimore.

Larsen, Mantle and Elston Howard led the persistent attack with three hits each, and each drove in a pair of runs. Skowron, Tony Kubek and Yogi Berra each had two hits.

Intentionally Wins $90,650 Withers Mile

NEW YORK (AP)—Intentionally, a black colt owned by the Brookfield Farms of Harry Isaacs, Baltimore sportsman, overtook the pace-setting Crafty Skipper on the turn for home Saturday and went on to capture the $90,650 Withers Mile at Belmont Park by three lengths.

Emil Dolce's Manassa Mauler, who upset First Landing in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica last month, finished second. Howard F. Keck's Bagdad, an invader from California tracks, came up from far back to collect third money, four and a half lengths back of Manassa Mauler. The Charfran Stable's Crafty Skipper, the favorite of the crowd of 37,337, finished seventh after setting the early pace.

Manuel Ycaza, the Panamanian jockey who replaced the suspended Bill Hartack, rode Intentionally. It was his third victory in six races on the program.

Thirteen 3-year-olds started in the 84th running of the Withers.

Ycaza then sent Intentionally around Crafty Skipper turning for home with about a quarter of a mile to travel. The speedy son of Intent-My Recipe, by Discovery, drew off to win in a snappy 1:35 3-5, making this the fastest Withers ever run. Count Fleet set the track record of 1:34 4-5 as a 2-year-old in 1942. It was equalled by Blessbull in 1956.

The winner paid $7.50, $4.40 and $3.60.

Red Sox shortstop Don Buddin hit a solo homer with one out in the last of the ninth to prolong the contest.

Bob Allison, who had hit his ninth homer in the fourth inning, opened the 11th with a single. Harmon Killebrew followed with a single but Ted Williams threw Allison out at second.

Then it was a Lemon homer, back to back doubles by Julio Becquer and Faye Throneberry and a walk to Ron Samford before Mike Fornieles replaced Wall with just one hit.

Veeck Now Works Overtime To Sell Baseball

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Veeck, who as a kid in knee pants sold peanuts in the Cubs' Wrigley Field, now works overtime to sell the great national pastime of baseball.

"I guess I have what you'd call a strong inner urge for baseball," said the new president of the White Sox in an interview in his ninth floor apartment on Chicago's South Side.

"I can't even pass up a sand lot ball game without stopping to watch the kids play."

Veeck, his usual sports shirt open at the collar, sat across the room from his wife, Mary Frances. He had his ear tuned to a tiny radio, listening to a Cubs-Phillies ball game.

"The Yankees are playing Detroit today," Veeck said. "If they lose this, they'll drop to eighth place. Isn't that a shame. Ha ha. That's good." (The champions dropped to the basement, 13 to 6).

As majority stock holder now of the White Sox Veeck works an 18-hour day with a double-barreled goal: win ball games and new fans. And his White Sox, in a tug of war for first place, are winning games.

"We're playing a little over our heads," said Veeck. "I'm afraid if the players will read the newspapers and see the rarified air they'll collapse."

Veeck arrives at the ball park around 7 a.m. Every day he's in town. He often doesn't turn in until 2 a.m.

"I wander all over the park and talk to the fans. I listen to their ideas and complaints," he said.

"Don't forget when you're selling automobiles or something like that you know how you are doing. But when you're selling baseball, all the customer can take home is the impression he has in his mind. And that's important."

One of the newest impressions Veeck has planned caps a long line of impressions he's made including a midget who batted for the St. Louis Browns.

"I bought 10,000 rain capes I'm going to give away to fans sitting in box seats," he said. "They are like ponchos, "when it rained, I noticed fans would hold score cards over their heads. This way they'll be more comfortable and can stay in their seats."

Rockets Enjoy Banner Year In PMSC Conference Play

The 1958-59 Routt High School lettermen pictured above really enjoyed a banner season under coach Bob Winstead this past campaign by going undefeated in football, basketball and baseball in PMSC Conference competition. Another honor was their 1959 PMSC Conference basketball tournament crown.

Pictured from left to right, first row: Jerry Bonjean, George Trutter, coach Bob Winstead, John Fitzpatrick and Fred Curtis. Second row: Bob Reavy, Billy Tobin, David Casey, Bob Brennan, Chuck Gaudio, Mickey Walker, Irvin Todd, Buddy Elliott and Tom Murray. Third row: Larry Sellers, Denny Lewis, Ron Lawless, Ed Langdon, Bob Johnson, Joe Cors, Jack Lawless and Bucky Sullivan. Two lettermen, Tom Shanle and Jack Carroll, are absent from the group.

A record for honors was established during the Rocket 1958-59 season in the nine-team PMSC Conference by winning the championship in all three sports plus the conference tourney in a 55-45 win over Illinois Deaf.

In football, Routt defeated Bluffs, 53-6; Meredosia, 66-18; Arenzville, 44-0; and Chapin, 32-6. The conference record was four wins, no losses and the overall record was eight wins against one defeat. The lone setback was a 21-20 decision to Auburn, who has dominated the MSM conference in football for the past eight years.

Eleven-man victories came over Petersburg, 19-6, Pawnee, 18-12; Franklin, 32-0; and Pleasant Hill, 40-20.

The Rockets were 8-0 in the loop's basketball standings. Victories came at the expense of Meredosia, 76-35; Chandlerville, 83-33; Bluffs, 50-43; Arenzville, 58-44; Virginia, 66-49; ISD, 65-57; Chapin, 57-54; and Perry, 67-43. The season's won and lost record was 22-6 with five of the losses coming in December before the Rockets got on a 16-game winning streak. The string was snapped by JHS in the regional semifinals, 69-50. Routt finished second to New Berlin in their own Holiday Tournament finals, 54-38. Routt's best showing in the holiday affair was a 28-26 triumph over a tough Camp Point aggregation.

Winstead's nine won the baseball championship for the third straight year with a mark of 6-0. They defeated ISD, 22-0; Chapin, 9-0; Meredosia, 14-2; Bluffs, 16-2; Chandlerville, 22-0; and Virginia, 10-0.

The overall baseball record was 11 wins against five losses. Well earned wins came over Quincy, 8-3 and 4-2, Cathedral 6-5, and Jerseyville, 4-3.

Three sports lettermen were John Fitzspatrick, Irvin Todd, Larry Sellers, Mickey Walker, Fred Curtis, Jack Lawless and Bill Tobin.

Two sports lettermen included Jerry Bonjean, Ron Lawless, Tom Shanle, George Trutter, Bob Johnson, Buddy Elliott and Charles Gaudio.

Winning letters in one sport were Tom Murray, Harry Coop, Bob Reavy, Dave Casey, Denny Lewis, Jack Carroll, Ed Langdon, Joe Cors, Bob Brennan and Bucky Sullivan.

The Rockets have some insurance for another sterling sports season next year with the return of 12 lettermen.

Sophomore Sprinter Leads Illinois To Easy Track Triumph

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — An unheralded sophomore sprinter led defending champion Illinois to an easy triumph in the 59th Big Ten outdoor track meet which produced two new records on soggy Ferry Field Saturday.

Illinois piled up 65½ points.

Ward Miller streaked to a double victory in the 100 and 220-yard dashes to pace the Illini parade to its 21st outdoor title.

In just the two dashes and 880 yard run, won in record time by George Kerr from Jamaica, the Illini amassed 24 points to kill off whatever chance indoor champion Michigan might have had for the team crown. At the same time, Michigan's indoor sprint champion, Tom Robinson from the Bahamas, pulled up lame in the 100 and was scratched from the 220.

A eight-year-old conference mark was shattered in the mile run as Michigan State's Bob Lake won handily in 4:08.5. This bettered the old record of 4:09.0, set in 1951 by Michigan's Don McEwen.

The 880 conference record fell with a 1:50.1 winning performance by Kerr. The former mark was 1:50.3 established last year by Michigan State's Dave Lean.

The only other double winner was Indiana's Willie May, who retained his 120-yard high hurdles title and dethroned Michigan's Pete Stanger in the 220 lows.

May edged out Minnesota's Dave Odegard in the modest time of :14.3. The Hoosier timber topper beat Michigan's Dick Cephas by two steps in capturing the low hurdles in :22.9, three-tenths of second behind Jesse Owens' 1935 meet record.

In all, Illinois captured four individual firsts and the mile relay. Illinois high jumper Ernie Haisley retained his championship with a leap of 6 feet 8¼ inches just a shade behind the Big Ten mark of 6 feet 8½ inches.

New champions also were crowned in the two-mile run, won by Michigan State's Crawford Kennedy in 9:15.1; Eeles Landstrom, Finland's contribution to Michigan, who took the pole vault at 14-8; Northwestern's Fred Williamson in the shot put (53-8); and Iowa's John Brown in the 440 (:48.1).

Minnesota's Len Edelen failed to defend his two-mile crown because of injury.

Perhaps the day's best race was between Kerr and Michigan's Tony Seth in the record-breaking 880. Seth moved into an early lead, but Kerr turned on a tremendous burst of speed entering the final stretch and won by five yards.

Illinois 65½, Michigan 45, Indiana 19, Iowa 17, Ohio State 16½, Minnesota 13 5-6, Northwestern 12 1-3, Michigan State 11, Wisconsin 8, Purdue 7 5-6.

Pirates Hang On For 6-5 Victory Over Cincinnati

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates got some home run bats booming Saturday and they were just barely enough for a 6-5 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs. It was the third successive win for the Pirates since Manager Danny Murtaugh reshuffled his starting lineup in St. Louis this week.

The Pirates got their scores in the first two innings and just managed to hang on.

A tremendous catch by Billy Virdon on a fly ball slugged deep into center field by Frank Robinson with the bases full in the Cincinnati seventh looked like every inch the game-saver.

Virdon earlier had produced the winning tallies with a three-run homer to the right field seats in the second inning.

Before that, the Pirates had counted in the first on a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly, for one run, and Bob Skinner's booming shot to the right field stands for two more.

Cincinnati also got some home run mileage, with Robinson stroking No. 9 in the fourth.

Eastern Michigan Bags IIAC Title

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — Hayes Jones captured four events and led host Eastern Michigan to the team championship in the Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Track Meet Saturday.

Jones set a new conference record in winning the 220-yard dash in :20.9, bettering his old record of :21.0 set last year. The speedster also won the 100-yard dash and the 120-yard high hurdles and 220-yard low hurdles.

Five new conference records fell despite a muddy track as Eastern placed second in the mile relay and edged Central Michigan 56-53 for the team title.

Other team scores: Illinois Normal 29; Southern Illinois 27; Northern Illinois 25 1-3; Eastern Illinois 23½; and Western Illinois 11 2-3.

Eastern Michigan's Mauri Jormakka captured the mile run in 4:16.8 and bettered the old conference record of 4:19.7 set by Ran of Western Illinois in 1958.

Blueboys Fared Well In 1959 Spring Sports

With the approach of final exams, the Illinois College Blueboys have finished their 1959 spring sports schedule and can look back upon a job well done. The Blueboy baseball team finished third in the Prairie College Conference, the track squad finished fourth, and the golf squad finished first for the third year in a row.

Baseball

The baseball squad started the season missing such sluggers as Ezard, Farmer, Urchek and Oldenettel. All of them hit over .300 their last year. However, several newcomers stepped into their shoes and did a very creditable job. Rather unusual, for a four year college, was the fact that there were, at most times, four and sometimes five freshmen in the starting lineup. One of these freshmen, Ed Puck from Maywood, Ill., led the squad in hitting with a .444 average. He was also the team leader in R.B.I.s with 21. Bob Hembrough, a senior from Franklin, Ill., was second in both departments with a .370 batting average and 16 R.B.I.s.

Since the pitching staff was not as effective as usual and the defense was sometimes spotty, the offense had to make a lot of runs and they responded by unleashing 159 hits in the 16 games played for a 7-9 record. There were six batters over the .300 mark and the entire squad batted for a .292 average. The following is a rundown on the individual performances:

Name	Hits	B.A.	R.B.I.
Puck, 1b	28	.444	21
B. Hembrough, cf	16	.370	16
Hart, p	5	.357	1

Track

The track squad, although not winning any major meets, made a very impressive showing in some of the biggest midwest college relays. Coach Myron Holmes had his squad entered in such meets as the Bradley Relays, Monmouth Relays, Rose Poly Relays, and the Harris Teachers Invitational. The most consistent winner this year was senior Gary Turpin, a senior from Carrollton, Ill. He gathered many points by almost consistently clearing 22' in the broad jump. On several occasions he seemed capable of beating Harold Chere's I.C. record of 23'9", but several unfortunate incidents prevented this. Chere's leap of 23'9" earned him the National Collegiate title at Stagg field in Chicago in 1926.

Although there were no records set this season, the mile-relay team came close on several occasions. In the conference meet at Rose Poly, they ran this event in 3:39, which was only 3/5 of a second off the school record. The 880 relay team also made a fine showing by consistently running around 1:35. Another athlete who placed in almost every meet was Jim Green, a sophomore sprinter from Jacksonville.

Golf

There is no doubt about which squad had the most successful season. It would have to be the golf team, who has lost only two matches in the last three years. One of these defeats, at the hands of Millikin University, was later revenged by the Blueboys. They also won their third straight P.C.C. championship and are anxiously awaiting the National Collegiate Tournament to be held at Quincy June 15-20. The golfers were led by J. R. Boone, a senior from Springfield, Ill. Other consistent performers were Jim O'Brien, Bob Bradley, and Jack Fairfield, all from Jacksonville, and Frank Harris from Springfield.

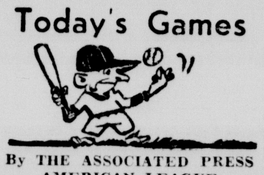

Tennis

The tennis squad, however, was not as effective as it was last year. However, numbers one and two men in singles are both sophomores, Jim Heap and Ed Varble, and quite a bit will be expected from them in their next two years on the Hilltop.

Joe Brooks, Director of Athletics at Illinois College, has announced that in the school year 1959-60, the Blueboys will add wrestling to their list of intercollegiate sports. Other sports already a regular part of the Blue and White agenda are football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis, golf and rifle.

Thus far, no opponents are scheduled in wrestling, but Brooks expects to have an interesting array of college matmen signed to face the I. C. boys in the coming winter months.

Jim Bryan, Defending Champ, Squeezes Into 500-Mile Race Lineup

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Defending champion Jimmy Bryan squeezed into the 500-mile race lineup Saturday after a tremendous mechanical achievement by his crew who completely rebuilt the engine of his car overnight.

Bryan, Phoenix, Ariz., veteran of seven Memorial Day races, was one of the slower of Saturday's nine qualifiers and not at all sure of staying in the lineup when the time trials are completed Sunday.

Saturday's qualifiers included Pat Flaherty of Chicago, the 1956 winner, and Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., who has started in 12 of the May 30 classics at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

None of Saturday's qualifiers, in wind ranging from 17 to 22 miles an hour, approached the speeds set by 14 qualifiers last weekend. Ten spots were left open in the 33-car starting lineup to be filled in Sunday's final 10-mile test.

Bryan sheared his oil pump Friday. George Salih of Whittier, Calif., owner-builder of the Belond Special and his mechanics worked all night to replace burned parts of the engine.

Bryan, three-time national champion, made his run at exactly the same speed as Chuck Arnold of Stamford, Conn., the only rookie who earned a tentative spot in the lineup Saturday. Both were timed at 142.118 m.p.h.

Earl Motter of Fresno, Calif., cracked up a Dean Special in the day's only mishap but escaped with a minor neck injury. His car slid into the wall on a practice run. It was the sixth wreck of the race preliminaries this year. Drivers Jerry Unser and Bob Cortner have been killed.

Both Bettenhausen and Flaherty shrugged off memories of bad wrecks to make their high speed runs. Bettenhausen picked up a special prize of $1,000 for Saturday's best speed.

Bettenhausen's car hit a retaining wall and overturned just a week ago in a practice run at the Speedway. He was only slightly hurt.

He climbed into another racer Saturday and roared through the 10 mile trial at 142.721 m.p.h.

Flaherty, 1956 winner of the $300,000 Memorial Day classic, was severely injured the same year in a race at Springfield, Ill. He missed the last two 500's but qualified smothly Saturday at 142.399 m.p.h.

Michigan Takes Tennis Crown

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Mighty Michigan played with perfection and precision Saturday and won its third Big Ten tennis title in four years.

The Wolverines swept all six singles matches and the three doubles with loss of only one set. Michigan amassed a perfect team score of 87 points, more than doubling runnerup Illinois' total. Defending champion Iowa was a distant third.

Falling in the wake of Michigan's complete domination of the tournament was Iowa's No. 1 singles champion Art Andrews. Jon Erickson, the Wolverines' lanky power hitter, dethroned Andrews 9-7, 6-4.

Michigan's Gerry Duble polished off Bob Breckenridge of Illinois 6-3, 6-0 in the No. 2 singles before teamming with Erickson for the No. 1 doubles triumph.

Larry Zaitzeff brought Michigan the No. 4 singles crown with a 6-4, 6-3 triumph over Joe Epkins of Illinois.

The No. 5 singles went to Michigan's Frank Fulton who beat Don Mesch of Illinois 1-6, 6-0, 6-3.

Zaitzeff and Wayne Peacock swept through the No. 2 doubles match with a 6-0, 6-2 triumph over George Gilmore and Epkins of Illinois.

Michigan's sweep was completed when Fulton and John Wiley battled past Mesch and Bob Lansford of Illinois 7-5, 8-6 in the No. 3 doubles.

Team totals—Michigan 87, Illinois 43, Iowa 28½, Minnesota 25, Michigan State 19½, Indiana 15½, Ohio State 14, Northwestern 7½, Wisconsin 5½, Purdue 2.

Baseballers Hit .273

Coach Bill Wall commented at last Monday's athletic banquet that the Highlanders, in his estimation, had improved "1,000 per cent over last year." He was speaking more of the spirit and competitiveness rather than percentages, although they did improve .500 in winning five of 15 games this year.

Leading hitter was Ron Price with a .412 average. He also paced the team in runs batted in with 21. Joe Jamison of Beardstown hit .340 and Dan McWhorter of Belleville, Ill., hit .326 and led the team in homers with five. Here are statistics:

Veech Clings To Memphis Lead

MEMPHIS (AP) — Tom Veech, the rookie pro from Milwaukee, clung to the lead in the $25,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament Saturday with a clutch 1-under-par 69 for a 36 hole total of 132.

The 265-pound 3-time winner of the Wisconsin Open kept the gallery tense with a birdie-bogie style that saw him in and out of traps and rough and barely able to summon up those crucial putts.

Veech, 29, toured the 6,501-yard, 34-36-70 Colonial Country Club course in 34-35, erasing 5 birdies with 5 bogies but rallying for another bird on the 16th. He 3-putted the 18th to miss a seventh bird.

Veech had seized the lead in the first round with a 7-under-par 63 that equaled the course record.

He was on the 18th green and lying 4-under-par Friday when a rainstorm washed out all scores.

Cajun Jay Herbert of Lafayette, La., hung in second place, one stroke off the pace. He added a neat 34-34-68 to his first round 66 for 133.

Al Besselink of Grossinger, N.Y. pulled in third with a 33-36-69 to complement a first round 65 and total 134.

Ministers Comment On Malicious Rumors

Since a public announcement has been made acknowledging currently existing rumors concerning high school students, we feel constrained to make this statement:

1. We have a deep faith in the moral integrity of the large majority of our high school students, because we personally know so many of them.

2. We are convinced that the current rumors are based more upon imagination of youthful, restless, frustrations than upon fact.

3. But we are also convinced that the very existence of the rumors means that our youth are trying to communicate their needs to the adult community—parents, schools, churches, and local government.

4. We suggest that one of these needs may be the lack of sufficient public interest in promoting adequate social and recreational facilities for the youth of this community.

This statement is being made for the purpose of possible stimulation of public interest.

BUSINESS ACTIVITY REACHES NEW HIGHS

Business recovery has been under way for a year. Most measures of business activity have reached new record highs, but some problems remain.

Civilian employment reached 65 million in March. This number was 2.1 million more than a year earlier and 700,000 more than the number at work two years before (similar months must be compared to show real progress, since there are always more jobs in summer than in winter).

Unemployment in April was estimated at 3.7 million, which was 1.5 million less than one year before and 1 million more than two years earlier.

The index of industrial production climbed to 147 in March. This level was one point above the pre-recession of 146 and 21 points above the recession low of 128 in May of last year.

Personal income reached an annual rate of $369 billion in March compared with the pre-recession high of $352 billion and the recession low of $348 billion.

Retail sales in March were $17.7 billion, which was $600 million more than the pre-recession high and $1.6 billion more than the recession low.

Housing starts in the first quarter of this year totaled 295,000 units. This number was 38 percent more than last year, and it broke the previous record set four years before.

Some of the recent business recovery was stimulated by attempts to build up steel supplies as a hedge against a long strike. Strike or not, some letdown in steel production is likely in the next few months.

There are, however, important signs of continuing recovery. For example, orders for machine tools are increasing. Orders for metal-cutting tools amounted to $105 million in the first quarter of this year, or 46 percent more than one year before.

A recent survey showed that businessmen plan to spend $2.1 billion for new plants and equipment this year, or 7 percent more than they spent in 1958. Most of this spending will be to replace old facilities with more efficient plants and equipment and to produce new products.

Most manufacturers still have capacity to make more than they can sell—at present prices. At the beginning of this year, they had enough unused plant capacity to increase production by one-fourth.

Personal and family spending provide more of the buying power that makes the wheels of industry go around. Part of this spending depends upon credit.

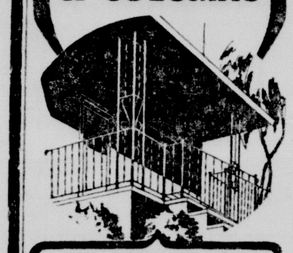

Consumers owed $44 billion at the beginning of March, or $1 billion more than one year before. It is encouraging that consumer debt increased only about half as fast as income in the 12-month period.

An important bearish factor in the business prospect is that, whereas the federal government spent $13 billion more than it took in during the year ending June 30, it is expected to keep spending much more closely in line with income in the coming year.

FLOATING SILOS—These aging "Liberty" cargo ships, part of the fleet that aided allied victory in World War II, are still serving the nation. They are among 83 anchored in the James River near Ft. Eustis, Va., loaded with government surplus grain. But they are only a sample of the 229 Liberty ships currently storing grain—in the Hudson River, just below West Point; in the Columbia River, near Astoria, Ore.; and in Puget Sound, near Olympia, Wash. There is enough wheat on one ship to make two slices of bread for every man, woman and child in the country; enough in the James River fleet alone to provide seven loaves of bread for each person in the U.S.

Jersey Wheat Crop Prospects Favorable

By ARTHUR THATCHER

JERSEYVILLE — The winter wheat crop in Jersey county is in the heading stage, and the prospect for a crop in the locality continues favorable.

Winter barley, however, suffered considerable damage during the sub zero cold of January and February and many fields have been plowed to replace the barley with corn or soy beans.

Red clover which was seeded in the winter wheat and winter barley fields early this year has found the present season quite favorable thus far and a good stand is reported in most localities. Because of the excellent prospect for red clover, the winter barley which was being used as a cover crop has been permitted to stand in many fields where the barley was badly winter killed.

Wet weather during the past week in the Jersey county vicinity, coupled with frost producing temperatures several mornings resulted in a slow down of corn and soy bean planting.

A survey Tuesday afternoon indicated that about forty per cent of the corn acreage has been planted in the county. Some soy beans have been planted, but the acreage dedicated to this crop for 1959 remains about 80 per cent unplanted.

Late planting of soy beans has generally been considered best so the crop may escape weeds to a greater extent. Most acreages for both corn and beans have been plowed as a result of favorable weather in April and early May for such work.

At present, plowed land planned for soy beans is showing a heavy growth of young weeds, and these will be done away with when the ground is disced preparatory to sowing the beans. Late planting of corn is also considered desirable in view of a winter carry over of corn borer in the locality from the 1958 season.

When buying vegetable plants for transplanting, select those that are stocky, medium-sized and free from disease. Good root systems are extremely important also.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

(A roundup of the week's work, activities and observations at the University of Illinois Dixon Springs Experiment Station near Robbs in southern Illinois, prepared by H. A. Cate.)

Perhaps someone should tell this author what is going on at Dixon Springs this week. Last week I made a quick trip to Liberty, Mo., near Kansas City, with Virgil Bremer, Massac county beef farmer. He is sure that performance-tested bulls are worth driving several hundred miles to get, as well as being worth a little more money. This week I am in Champaign-Urbana for the North Central Region Livestock Production and Marketing Conference. Between times, I landed at the Dixon Springs Station long enough to observe that pasture grasses are heading and should be and are being clipped, corn is being planted and some much needed rain has fallen.

Represetned at the Production and Marketing Conference are extension personnel working with cattle, hogs, sheep and marketing from some 10 or 11 colleges. Now any of you who know extension specialists know that their stock in trade is talking; and most of them not only can talk, but can talk well. As a result, the discussions have been broad and free-wheeling.

Changes

We all recognize the fact that farming is changing, and changing rapidly. We have integration, contract and corporation farming, specialization, rapidly developing mechanization and greater and greater emphasis on efficiency.

We all know that these changes are taking place, but we don't know whether some of the changes are good or bad. We don't all agree on how to proceed in an educational program in a rapidly changing agriculture—just as farmers do not agree on the changes they must make.

Boiling Down

Well, anyway, in a group such as is meeting this week at Urbana you boil the thing down with some good, clear thinking. Perhaps in our thinking we are too often caught in the tidal wave of bigness in farming. Because large-scale, specialized hog production and cattle feeding are so spectacular, we tend to exaggerate their importance. We can't deny that they do exist and that they are important to our production. We don't dare say that they'll dry up and go away. They will probably continue and increase. But the thoughtful boiled-down, consideration of the group was that family-sized farming could and would compete and would be around for a long, long time.

Old-Fashioned Farm Out

J. W. Burch, Director of Extension from Missouri, stated that "the old-fashioned farm with 10 beef cows, 10 dairy cows, 20 sheep and 100 hens is out the window. But a man can still specialize in hogs and beef cattle along with corn." Director Burch said that, according to Indiana farm management folks, the unit cost on 15 to 20 brood sows could be as low as on any larger number.

Big, specialized feeding operations may have advantages in buying and marketing of animals. They may have expert nutritionists and managers on their staffs. But the good farmer can continue to produce his own feed cheaper than the specialist can buy it, and thereby hedge or reduce risks. For example, risks in buying and marketing livestock may be partly absorbed by high feed or crop yields. Then, too, home labor can beat the socks off a lot of hired labor. According to Burch, "such a farmer will continue to make tough competition for the so-called big, specialized producer."

Johnson Speaks

Paul Johnson, editor of Prairie Farmer, in a talk to the group, proposed that two-family farms, father and son or other like arrangements might be the best answer to the big 20-family farm. Mr. Johnson said, "Efficiency is a tool and must not be thought of as an end in itself." He further suggested that we do too little and talk too little about the non-material things in farm life, indicating that we are sacrificing the "good life" to efficiency.

Now I think I'll head for Dixon Springs and ask Jack Lewis how the fish in the ponds are doing there.

Annual Agronomy Day On June 24

URBANA — More than 1,000 Illinois farmers will be guests of the University of Illinois Department of Agronomy on June 24, when crop and soil scientists will display their latest research projects on the University Agronomy Research Farm at Urbana.

M. B. Russell, head of the agronomy department, invites all farmers and others interested in crops and soils to come and see research in progress and to learn the latest findings.

Co-chairmen Carl N. Hittle and S. R. Aldrich report that the following areas are being planned for the tours: crop insects, crop diseases, chemical weed control and equipment, corn population studies, corn tillage, soybean row-width research, soybean types and new varieties, alfalfa varieties and management research, band-seeding legumes, established forage legumes with herbicides, soil fertility research, soil profiles, water use and wheat and oat variety tests.

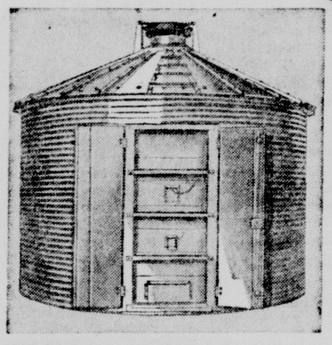

The Agronomy Research Farm is located directly south of the main University campus at Champaign-Urbana. Tours will begin at 9:30 a.m. and will continue through the morning and early afternoon.

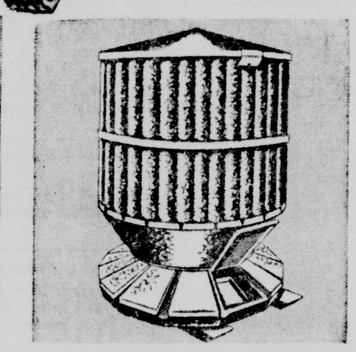

Corn yields dropped nearly 26 bushels an acre and soybean yields decreased as much as 17 bushels in two-year trials when University of Illinois agronomists let giant foxtail compete with the growing crops.

On The House

The U.S. House of Representatives naturally wants to put something of its own stamp upon any labor reform bill finally approved by Congress. Yet most Americans do not want it to lose sight of the national need for a suitable bill at an early date.

The Senate-approved Kennedy bill, which stresses full disclosure of union financial affairs and provides procedures to promote union democracy, would be a marvel if it satisfied House members in every regard. Seldom does so controversial a measure whistle through both houses in almost identical form.

The House might find itself treading on dangerous ground with the voters if it either failed to come up with any legislation at all, or so loaded a bill with controversial features as to endanger its passage or its workability.

Undoubtedly the House will be subjected to redoubled pressures from both labor and management representatives as to the proper contents of such a bill. With 436 members, it has a harder time than the Senate resisting pressures of any sort.

Yet this it must obviously do if it is to come up with acceptable labor reform. It cannot listen to James Hoffa, president of the Teamsters union, on this issue. The activities of Hoffa and certain other Teamsters officials are partly responsible for the call to reform.

Nor must the House assume that this is the last labor bill that Congress will ever adopt. Every abuse of business was not corrected in one law. Why load everything into one labor bill?

A select committee chosen by the Senate from labor, business and public representatives has still to report its findings on many broad labor issues. It is assumed these will be made the subject of further legislation in this field. To wait for their report before trying to cover everything seems to make sense.

The House may soon be feeling acute pressures, yes. But they may be minor compared to the public's verdict if a bad bill or no bill at all should be the result of the current deliberations.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—John Foster Dulles, from the moment he resigned as secretary of state because of his spreading cancer, belonged to history. What will history say of him?

It can never deny that this 71-year-old man gave to the service and welfare of his country tremendous and tireless dedication. He quit only because of the illness which incapacitated him.

But only unfolding events—history itself—can ever give a final answer to the central question of his stewardship: Was he a good secretary of state in the sense that the policy he pursued was wise?

His great task was dealing with communism. If his whole policy toward the world of the Soviets and Red Chinese were to be summed up in a single sentence, this could be it: "Hold tight and don't let them budge an inch."

This was exactly the "containment" policy of his predecessor, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson. It called for military alliances all around the Communist perimeter and economic help to friends and neutrals.

The purpose was direct, obvious and simple: to keep communism from gaining any more ground, militarily, economically or politically. It was essentially a defensive policy, not an aggressive one.

Dulles disagreed with it thoroughly in the 1952 presidential campaign before he became secretary. He called it "negative, futile and immoral." He said it was limited to reacting to Soviet actions. In short, he said the United States should create crises for the Soviet Union instead of letting the Soviet Union create crises for us.

But when he became secretary he took over the Acheson policy, made it his own, even expanded on it with new military alliances.

Yet Dulles had hardly taken office before Soviet policy changed, at least outwardly. Forty-four days after Dulles was sworn in, the old dictator, Joseph Stalin, died, and with him went the needlessly savage Soviet foreign policy.

His successors took a softer line although their purpose, and they made no bones about it, was the same: Communist expansion. They managed to increase their influence beyond their borders but American military alliances and power remained firm and the Soviets didn't gain an extra foot of real estate.

Yet, the Soviets and Red Chinese went ahead by leaps in their own internal development, particularly the Soviet Union in the field of weapons which put added pressure on the West to stand back. The cold war between East and West was just as intense when Dulles went to the hospital as when he took office six years ago.

This is why many years must pass before history can give a final verdict on the policy and wisdom of Dulles, for it will take many years and many events as they unfold the show:

1. Whether his policy led, or helped lead, to the ultimate ruination or triumph of communism or to a peaceful understanding between East and West.

2. Whether, by the time he took office and Stalin died, the Acheson policy was outmoded and Dulles should have sought and pursued a different one of his own making, with more aggressiveness and less defensiveness, or with more friendliness and less hostility.

3. Whether the forces already let loose before he became secretary in 1953—ultimately favorable or unfavorable to the West—were already too powerful to be affected in their direction or destination by him or any one man.

4. Whether he was wise in depending so much on his own thinking or whether he should have made far greater use of the minds of the men around him in the State Department.

No one now—and certainly not Dulles, whose sense of history was too sharp for that—can claim to know positively the answers to the questions just raised. But no one can challenge this about him: he did his best as he saw it.

Wife, Too, Must Adjust To Husband's Retirement

BY MARIE DAERR

The wife of a newly retired man, a former vice president of a big corporation, called on a friend in an employment agency.

"You've simply got to find something for Jim to do," she pleaded. "I just can't stand having him around the house all day long being restless and unhappy.

"All of a sudden, I find myself cooking three full meals a day. If this keeps up, I'll have to give up my church clubs and board memberships."

This woman is only one of thousands of wives who have found that they, too, have a big adjustment to make when the man of the house abruptly leaves the office that had been his second home for so long.

"A wife should be prepared to help her husband through a period of depression that will last for the first six months of his retirement," a psychiatrist said at a retirement conference.

"That's part of her job," he continued. "She could be ready to dish out big helpings of understanding."

In Jim's case, help in finding a part-time job did much to solve the problem. It wasn't a sensational job, compared with what Jim had been doing. Jim works part time as a clerk in a hardware store.

"You'd be surprised what that means to my husband," the wife said a few months later. "He has regular hours now. He's back on a schedule."

For other wives, a husband's retirement has meant a move to a new home in a faraway state where the couple believes life will be easier. Often, in those far-from-home spots, adjustment is harder for the wife than for the husband.

"I don't like fishing and I don't play golf," one wife said. "Bill is off with his pals all day long.

"Our house is so little, I'm through with my chores in no time. Then the problem is what to do in a town where I don't know anybody."

These transplanted women must make a real effort to find new friends and new activities to take the place of those back home. They must get acquainted with new neighbors. They must become interested in a church, join a club, find a volunteer job, offer to baby-sit for a busy young mother.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Summer must be approaching, because Andy Williams is getting ready to start a TV show.

That's getting to be as sure a sign of the coming of warm weather as the breaking of the ice in Alaska or the rise in Citronella sales. The personable recording star will be doing a summer replacement show for CBS, which means he will have touched all the bases.

First he filled in for Dinah Shore's old two-a-week, 15-minute show on NBC. Next he subbed for Pat Boone's half hour on ABC. Now it's CBS with a whole hour — the Garry Moore slot on Tuesday nights.

How does he feel about being the summer kid?

"I don't like it so well," he admitted. "After last year, I decided I wouldn't do another summer replacement. I'm doing well with records, night clubs and guest appearances.

"But then the idea came up to do a show with only performers under 20. Except me; I'm 28, though I'm thinking of going back to 27. That sort of a show sounded exciting, and I agreed to do it.

"The trouble was that the sponsors wouldn't go for it. They wanted a variety program. You couldn't find comedians that young; they aren't funny under 20. I don't know why — aren't sick enough yet, I guess."

So Andy will be taking over for Garry July 7 for 12-14 weeks. He's more hopeful about breaking into the winter league this year because CBS is looking for a musical star.

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, daddy of the atomic submarine, claims that he doesn't have a single aide or publicity man. He is his own huckster.

Whenever Rickover writes a speech he dispatches copies to Pentagon reporters. Then the admiral phones each newsman to ask how he likes the speech and whether he plans to write about it.

The reporters don't mind one bit. In fact, they're relieved. When Rickover started copyrighting his speeches recently, newsmen feared that he was becoming wary of talking for publication. It's rumored that the reason for the copyright is that Rickover plans to publish his speeches in a book.

REP. BILL AYRES (R-Ohio) vows that he's going to get out of the habit of folding his arms across his chest—especially when he wears a tuxedo. While he was standing in the Shoreham Hotel lobby, a woman asked him directions to one of the dining rooms. Bill offered to take her there.

Upon arriving, they were met by the woman's husband, who turned out to be the U.S. Information Agency chief George Allen. Before he and Bill could exchange greetings, Mrs. Allen exclaimed:

"This is why I like the Shoreham, George. It has such efficient waiters."

A RETIRED Pentagon Army general explains that he has the highest respect for the medical profession, especially the doc who gave him his last physical examination.

First the physician told him to keep guzzling his usual four drinks before dinner. "They will help you relax," the doctor explained. Then he pooh-poohed the idea the general was 15 pounds overweight. "Keep eating," he said.

The only thing that bothered him was the amount of sleep that the general was getting. "Forget about that eight-hour rule," he said. "Stay up two hours later, and you'll feel better."

YOUNG KING BAUDOIN of Belgium turned out to be the friendliest royal gent who's visited Washington this year. He signed autographs for young and old alike, flashed pulse-raising smiles at hordes of admiring gals and talked the ears off anyone who asked him a question.

He was especially talkative to reporters. At a press reception he even gave them an impromptu journalism lecture on how to improve their own writing.

People who were happiest about Baudoin's genial attitude were Belgian newsmen who accompanied him to the U.S. Getting an interview with the King in Belgium is as rare there as eating Mexican chili.

WALTER REED Army Hospital doctors complain that a new device for detecting nuclear fallout in people is changing barracks slang. The examination calls for patients to lie inside a special machine which counts the amount of radioactivity in their bodies.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

Children of the Bible

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

So far as I know no one has made a special study of children of the Bible, or listed the times and interesting situations in which they appear. Yet such a study has a bearing on the nature of religion as well as upon the worth and welfare of the children.

Outstanding is the Christmas story of the birth and infancy of Jesus Himself, the rejoicing of those like Anna the Prophetess awaiting the Messiah, the blessedness of Simeon performing "the custom of the law" (Luke 2), and the Magnificat of Mary (Luke 1:46-55).

There is the Boy of 12 disputing with the Doctors in the Temple, and that is all concerning His childhood, except the assurance that "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." (Luke 2:52).

Next is the portrayal of Jesus blessing the children: "Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven." (Matthew 19:14). "And He laid His hand on them."

The disciples who would have rebuked the mothers and would have sent them away are not untypical of the many in all ages who undervalue children.

The worth of a child demands the value Jesus placed upon the children, the "little children."

There are other children in the New Testament. There was the anonymous lad with "five barley loaves and two small fishes" (John 6) who appears in the feeding of the multitude, though Matthew and Mark mention the loaves and fishes but give no credit to the boy.

There was the little maid, presumably dead, whom Jesus restored to life (Matthew 9:18-26). There was another maid (Mark 14:66) whose anonymous fame is not so worthy; it was she who accused Peter of being of the Master's company, evoking his bitter denial. Why should the maid have sided against Peter? Children can often be unnecessarily cruel.

Apart from the Gospels the most interesting "child" of New Testament is the grown man, Timothy. St. Paul's companion and "son." It is to Timothy's childhood in a Christian home, under the upbringing of his mother, Eunice, and his grandmother, Lois (II Timothy 1:5) that Paul finds the source of Timothy's worthiness.

In the Old Testament the outstanding children are the infant Moses, rescued from the bulrushes by Pharoah's daughter, and Samuel, child of his mother Hannah's prayers, growing up in the Temple.

Others there are, but space does not permit of their mention, here.

Tourists spend 77 million dollars annually in Hawaii.

Feel certain that other women's houses always look the way they look when company is expected?

Have days when thinking of something to have for dinner seems like a major problem?

Occasionally feel that her husband simply has no idea of how hard she works?

At times get so tired of her house that she either has to shove furniture around, buy a can of paint and a paintbrush, or get something new, if it is only a sofa pillow?

Resent having another woman give her advice on how to make her house more convenient or attractive?

Think her husband is criticizing when he makes helpful suggestions on how she could do her work in less time?

Sit down with a sigh and a second cup of coffee when she finally gets the family off to work and to school?

Find it almost impossible to resist a "bargain" even though she had never thought of buying the item before?

Try to soften the blow to her husband by using the word "found" instead of "bought" when she feels a little guilty about buying something she didn't really need?

South Carolina Spoon Bread Calls for Butter or Gravy

By GAYNOR MADDOX,
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Spoon bread is one of corn meal's most delicious offerings. A Southern favorite, it is increasingly popular throughout the rest of the country. Because most corn meal produced today is enriched, combined with eggs and milk into Southern spoon bread, it adds to both nutrition and eating delight. Spoon from the dish in which it is baked and serve butter or gravy.

There seem to be as many recipes as there are cooks in the South. However, we'll use one from South Carolina today.

South Carolina Spoon Bread
(Serves 4 or 5)

Four cups milk, 1 cup enriched corn meal, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1½ teaspoons salt, 4 eggs, well beaten.

Mix milk and corn meal. Scald and cook in top of double boiler until the consistency of thin mush (about 5 minutes). Add the butter and salt. Fold well beaten eggs slowly into mixture. (If desired, whites and yolks may be beaten separately and folded into mixture.) Pour into a greased 1½-quart baking dish. Bake in oven at 400 degrees F. for 45 minutes. Serve at once from dish in which baked.

From another part of the country comes this unusual soup, using California carrots, onion, wine and ripe olives. Certainly different, but very pleasant.

California Black and Gold Soup
(Makes about 3½ cups)

Two cups thinly sliced carrots, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1/16 teaspoon curry powder or nutmeg, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon instant minced onion OR ¼ cup chopped green onion, 1 cup water, 1 tablespoon flour, 1½ cups light cream, ¼ cup sauterne wine, ¼ cup small ripe olive wedges, chopped parsley or watercress.

Combine carrots, 2 tablespoons butter, curry, salt, onion and water; cook until carrots are tender. Cool slightly, then puree or press through a sieve with any remaining cooking liquid. Melt remaining tablespoon butter, blend in flour. Stir in cream; cook and stir until mixture boils and thickens slightly. Blend in carrot puree, wine and olives; taste for seasoning. Heat and serve with sprinkling of parsley.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Sliced cold roast beef, hot gravy, South Carolina spoon bread, green beans with white onions, leftover cake slices with rhubarb sauce, coffee, tea, milk.

Be Kind To Bossy: There's $$$ In It

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — If you are kind to your cow she will give you more milk.

That's what U. S. Department of Agriculture and Missouri scientists have discovered.

Researchers found that a good electric fan blowing a comfortable nine-mile-an-hour breeze along a hot cow's back can give her milk output a real boost. When the temperature's 95 degrees in the shade and it's humid, a Holstein cow will give a quarter to a third more milk with that fan blowing.

Or suppose, again, that the temperature is 95 degrees outside. The research men note they can lure Holsteins into giving one and a half times as much milk if they air condition the barn down to 75 degrees.

COOL COW is a contented cow.

Some cows just can't stand hot and humid weather. As the temperature goes up they give less milk. Even after the heat wave is over it may take them some time to come back up to full output. Actually, cows generally are happiest between 40 and 75 degrees.

There are some cows that don't like it cold. Researchers have just learned they can have happier and healthier cows in winter if they heat the drinking water just a shade. That lures the cows into drinking more. Being healthier, they presumably will give more milk.

And the researchers find it's a good idea to warm up Jersey cows in winter to just a shade above freezing. If the weather's a cool 10 degrees, the warming will jump milk output by a quarter.

Hogs, apparently respond just as quickly to kindly treatment. The research men have just reported that if a hog is kept between 60 and 70 degrees he'll gain weight more quickly. That saves the farmer overhead, makes him more profit. Of course, this is a poor return for the hog. He gets carved up earlier.

And out in the Midwest, they've taken to warming up the beehives a little in winter. The bees, of course, are needed for pollinating the crops to insure a bigger harvest. Here though, the aim is not to make the bees happier. It's to keep them from freezing to death on cold winter days.

So far, the Agriculture researchers haven't translated these results in terms of how much less work a farmer turns out when he's trying to work on a hot summer day—or when he's out in the cold in winter.

But there is evidence that people do produce more if they're kept at just the right temperature. Some students of history claim to have found that all great past civilizations rose where the climate—at the time—was between 70 and 80 degrees.

Preparing For Exhibits

Those planning to exhibit animals at the fair this summer should allow at least eight weeks to get the animal ready. Remember, your animal will not learn much the day of the show. It will only reflect the kind of a job that was done before hand in getting it ready.

One of the first jobs is to train the animal to lead and pose well. Train it to hold its head up. Teach it to back with slight pressure at the point of the shoulders and to step forward with a slight pull on the halter. Make sure the animal learns to stand squarely and securely on its feet. Study the pose that shows off its good points and train it to hold them as long as desired.

Be sure to clip the long hair from the head of the polled beef breeds. Dairy animals should have the head and neck clipped. All breeds should have the tails clipped. Do not clip the entire body. If the grooming job is a good one, the animal will tell everyone so, then the showman can certainly be proud.

Glena Sue Sims, age 6 of 346 E. Michigan, writes "This is a mother bird setting on her nest. She is a pretty bird." Yes, she is a pretty bird, indeed, and soon she will be a very busy bird like the robin on our porch who has three VERY hungry baby birds to keep fed!

Feeding The Stranger

By Mary Pence Claywell

Part 1: The Castaway

It was early morning and the children had begun to arrive at the big country school across the way.

Soon, a teacher and a group of boys and girls gathered beside the road, and bent down over something black, which was lying in the ditch by the side of the pavement.

Then they brought bread and a can of water, and after leaving their offering of food and drink, they hurried back to the school rooms, for it was nine o'clock and the buzzer was already sounding.

On crossing the road, I saw a big black pup lying almost helpless in the ditch, where he had either been "dumped" or pushed from a car by somebody who didn't want him anymore.

Of course, he could have wandered there, but that isn't likely, for he had either been hit by a passing car, or hurt perhaps when he had been pushed out. Besides, many dogs and kittens have been dropped near the same location in the last few years, and left to die of thirst and hunger, wandering from place to place until they are too weary to pay attention to passing cars, and in the end being killed or painfully hurt.

Perhaps if the soft-eyed stranger could have spoken, he would have said something like this to me, as I too, stooped over him:

"Thanks so much, for I am hungry and thirsty . . . and my body is full of pain; last evening when I was hurt and left to die beside the road, I felt that all kindness had surely passed away in this strange cold world."

Wags His 'Thank-You'

Of course, he couldn't talk . . . but his tail seemed to wag out the message, for dogs do express themselves that way.

But we know, whether the discarded pet did or not, that although there are heartless people in the world . . . there are countless thousands who are kind and tender-hearted, like the teacher and her fine boys and girls, who still live by "The Golden Rule;" and it is gratifying to know that so many are anxious to relieve pain and suffering, even though the victim is but a dumb beast.

We know that Jesus not only healed people of sickness and made the lame to walk, and the blind to see, and provided us with food and drink, but also, He provided for every beast and bird, shelter, food and drink, and places for them to live . . . so we may feel sure that He was pleased with the kindness of the children.

Next: Part 2: Problem to Solve.

Willie And His Dog

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Part 4: Hides Book

Willie ventured into the awesome parlors. There he slipped his favorite storybook beneath the great Bible; that would be its protection while his small cousins visited the next day. They, too, liked his "Dog's Party," but none could keep reckless fingers away from the paper tabs that moved great Dash' head or Flash' bobbing tail.

Even 'Miss Flora' who sat in a silk frock at the banquet table could be rocked backward and forward to escape gravy drops splashed by hungry Pug. That exciting episode was a favorite for

"Twas rumoured by those with
Miss Flora acquainted,
Had the floor not been hard, she'd have certainly fainted."

Too many times had that page been reread until the connecting tabs were dangerously weakened, so Willie put his book in the safest place he could find.

Ready For Company

The next morning the parlor door was wide open, even the curtains were up letting sunlight fall on the bright new carpet. There were extra chairs too, for all the Aunts and Uncles who would gather, but Willie was to entertain the little cousins elsewhere. They would play on the lawn and have a little ride in the wagon with Ira, when he drove to town.

Willie's mother said "I have been in cake up to my elbows," and certainly his grandmother and her helpers had a fragrant dinner cooking.

Second Table

As 12 o'clock drew near, the children played closer and closer to the open windows, waiting to see the grownups move on to the dining room. All the cousins must wait for the second table, only little Clarissy could go with her mother.

"Why?" they murmered, "We are just as hungry as she is," but the door closed.

"We might play in the sitting room" Willie suggested, but he sat close to the diningroom doorway.

What Do You Think?

By Jerry Lawless

Straight Thinking

In this very busy and expanding world of ours today, the individual is constantly being subjected to countless ideas by his fellows.

Now, if everyone spoke in a very clear manner as to leave no doubt in the listener's mind as to the meaning of the person's ideas, there would be no need to contemplate the question at hand.

However, since every person is different physically and mentally, a person's spoken ideas can be interpreted in very many ways, as limited only by knowledge and personality, and understanding of the person who hears them.

This makes it necessary to set forth some criteria for straight thinking which will, if applied in a person's life, override the tendency of people who unintentionally (and sometimes intentionally) use long, complicated, and falacious arguments limiting human communications and advancements:

First Step

1. Definition of terms: This is probably the best way to prevent or to disentangle muddled thinking.

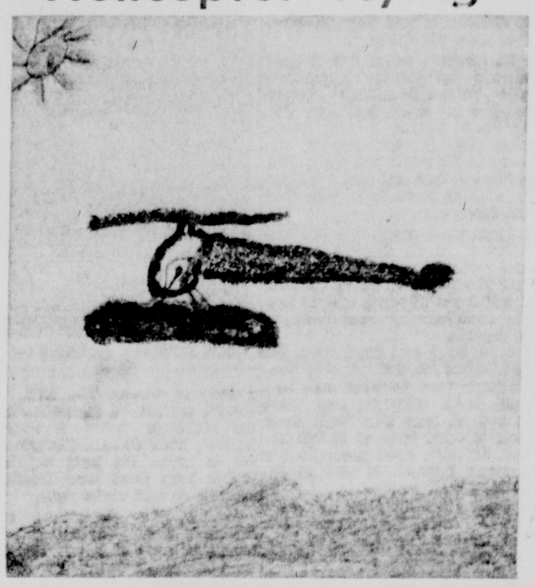

As we all realize, many words such as "freedom" and "justice" have more than one meaning. Since this is the case, a person should make sure that the person who is listening to his argument is thinking of the same designation and connotations of the key terms in the argument as he is.

It is the good listener's job to make sure that the speaker doesn't change the meaning of this word or term from one point in the argument to another without the listener being aware of it.

If the speaker is using a term in his argument in a special sense, being one that isn't common, he should make the fact known to the listener in the form of an impromptu definition.

Space Guard Serial—
DESTINATION EARTH

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

Synopsis: Space Guard ensigns, Ed Speedwell and Jerry Symons, are passengers on a space lift rocket taking off from Venus when one of the first stage motors bursts into flames. This fire is put out but the rocket begins to tilt over. The engines of the third stage fire and are soon followed by another and louder explosion.

Chapter 2: Into Orbit

Withdrawing fog banks, foaming seas, space port, and gray Venusian skies came into and left the port hole view as the third and fourth stages of the rocket were flung like an ash from a fire by the explosion of the first two stages.

The Space Lift rocket's gyros took over and leveled off the rocket as it shot out of the clouds surrounding Venus. Soon after that the motors cut off and the space ship glided quietly above the clouds.

"Your attention please," said the Pilot, "we are now out of danger. The rocket has gone into orbit 200 miles above Venus, and a space boat will reach us from Space Station 1 soon to take you the rest of the way to your ships. In the mean time you may move about as you wish, remembering, of course, that you are now weightless."

"After this launching I'll never be bored by another routine firing!" said Jerry, "in fact, I'll be glad its routine."

"Well, at least the pilot got us but alive," replied Ed, "he certainly deserves the Space Circle award for saving the fourth stage of his rocket and its passengers."

"He sure does! We got our little sopper space station pins for just saving ourselves when we could have waited for someone else to save us, which this pilot couldn't have done."

"That's true, but there's no reason why we can't help him, now that we're in orbit, by taking care of any one who needs first aid," said Ed rising from his couch.

One In Shock

Fortunately there was only one passenger in need of first aid, for shock. The rest of the passengers were getting over the ill effects of the take off as quickly as they could by themselves.

As soon as Ed and Jerry had given the passenger first aid for shock, they unfastened his crash couch from the ejection capsule. This permitted the space ambulance crew to rush the patient to the space hospital without taking up time to put him on a stretcher.

"Whoever thought of these launching seats sure was clever," said one of the passengers as she watched the rapidly disappearing ambulance.

"Yes," agreed Ed, "they kept all of the ten people on this rocket from being killed by that wild takeoff."

"Say, here comes the space boat for the rest of us," interrupted Jerry, "we better get our bags."

When the space boat reached the orbit of Venus Space Station No. 1 Jerry noticed a line of violet flames trailing off into space.

"I knew we should have taken an earlier rocket," he said, "it looks like the Space Ship train has had to take off for earth without us!"

Chapter 8: Friends After All

Aunt Vira had already packed most of her household things which were to go into the big wagon, so that as soon as the others arrived, they would be ready to leave without any further delay.

Emmy Lou threw back the covers and hopped out of her bed. "Perhaps this will be the day the wagons will come," she thought hopefully. Running to the window, in her ruffled nightgown, she looked down into the yard. There Simon sat in the garden swing, whittling something with his new pocket knife.

After that first unhappy encounter in the railway station, Emmy Lou and Simon had slowly become friends. She soon discovered that Simon held his two extra years in high regard, and she cleverly fell in with his role of self-appointed protector and older "brother."

Tells of Woods

Simon had proved to be wise beyond his years in the ways of nature. Emmy Lou, who had always been carefully protected all her life, became a willing and eager student.

He taught her about the woods and all the animals and birds who lived there. For the first time in her life, she became pleasantly aware of these living creatures, so that in only a short time, she was able to call many of them by name and to know something of their ways.

"Hi! Simon!" she called in greeting.

"Hi! Yourself!" he answered. "Are you goin' to stay in bed all day?"

"I'm getting up right now," she told him. "Have the wagons come in from Indiana yet?"

"Yes. Came in last night after you were asleep," he informed her importantly. "Mom and Dad are beginning to load the wagon."

"Oh, goody," she exclaimed excitedly. "I'll be right down as soon as I can dress." She had just begun to unbutton her gown and start dressing, when a pleasant voice called from the bottom of the stairway.

"Emmy Lou, better come down and get your breakfast, Honey. We have a lot of work to do today. The wagons came in last night, and we hope to be able to leave early in the morning."

"I'm hurrying, Aunt Vira," Emmy Lou answered, and she began to dress hurriedly.

WHITE OAK and AMERICAN ELM
By Rip Barnsdall

The bark of the White Oak is the lightest of any of the oaks. In the woods the white oak grows much taller than it does in open fields.

In the eastern states the American Elm is the commonest tree seen. Unfortunately, several diseases have wiped out many American Elms throughout the country.

Have you noticed the elm seeds that have been falling this past week?

C Q Radio Hams —
Novice Ticket Steps

By Joseph A. Smith

Receivers

By now you should be getting some small glimpse into this amateur radio business. While sometimes it seems difficult and complex, it can be interesting and challenging as well as FUN.

Never forget that no matter how difficult it may at first seem, literally THOUSANDS just like you have mastered it at least enough to get that ticket! YOU WILL TOO!

The first piece of gear a "Ham" wants for his furthre shack is a receiver. While you are in the midst of studying for the ticket, you can, as soon as possible, see about rounding up a receiver which will be useful for code practice through copying incoming slow speed code stations; such copying will do much to boost his code speed once you have mastered the alphabet.

Of course every would-be Novice would LIKE to buy at least a lower priced amateur receiver such as a Hallicrafter's S-38 model (etc.) or a Heathkit AR2 or 3, but this need not stop the fellow who can't afford one just now. A quite useful alternative receiver may be made out of a good 3 band regular broadcast and shortwave radio; especially if it has a geared down two speed dial assembly.

To Copy Code

To copy the code you need only to build into the receiver or add externally a Beat Frequency Oscillator (B.F.O.) such as was written up on page 49 of the February 1959 "QST" amateur magazine. It is quite simple, works fine, and is quite inexpensive!

If the B.F.O. is built outside to the receiver, probably the B-plus and filament voltages can be robbed from the receiver itself. Simply mount a 4 prong socket on the receiver chassis, hook the filament voltage to pins 1 & 4, and B plus to pin 2, hook up ground and B minus to pin 3. A connecting cable is used between receiver and the external B.F.O. (For a connecting plus why not use the base of an old 4 prong tube?)

Then again if you like to build you might build a two or three tube regenerative receiver similar to that given in your study book? A complete explanation of "How it works" is given, and, in any event, is very good reading. Also a number of fine kits are available in a wide range of costs.

Has Know-How

Incidentally, you may obtain more information about modifying a regular shortwave receiver from W9GHB (Lorenz Kehl, Jr., of this city). Also the selectivity of such receivers may be greatly improved by adding a simple C—L audio filter or an equally simple and inexpensive one transistor "Q-multiplier" the plans of which may be found in "The Novice-Technician Handbook." Likewise a Heathkit "Q-Multiplier" might be used.

Study for this week might proceed something like this:

CODE: Mon: Study and practice Lesson 3. Tues: Review and master Lesson 3. Wed: Study and practice Lesson 4. Thurs: Review and master Lesson 4. Fri: Make a general overall review of all letters covered thus far. Sat: Take a break!

THEORY: Read "Transmitters" carefully; when completed, turn to page 64 and glance over "A Simple One-Tube Transmitter." Pages 80 through 82 is a must. Tues: Read "Keying and Modulation" with particular attention to keying. Wed: If an A.R.R.L. Handbook is available, glance over the smaller two tube (oscillator-final amplifier) transmitters. Besides these, plans for a relatively simple 35 watt transmitter may be seen at the W9FOH directed Junior High Radio class. Thurs: Read further on transmitters in the A.R.R.L. Handbook or similar publications. (See public library, QST & CQ magazines etc.) Fri: Read (again in "How To Become A Radio Amateur") the section "The Transmitting Antenna" and "Transmitter Adjustment" from pages 77 to 80. Sat: Start and Planning your own first transmitter; kit or home-brewed, build it yourself and learn more!

Although some children are . . .
But I've made up my mind to
Hitch . . . my wagon to a star:

I may not get there quite as quick,
But I'll just work away . . .
With mind and eye upon my goal,
And . . . I'll get there some day!

I do not envy others . . .
I'm average, I'll admit . . .
Not smart enough to get there

But far . . . too smart to quit!

With all the noises that pound in on us with our modern civilization a lot of us might enjoy ducking into the U. S. Navy's echoless room in Maryland. All outside sounds are blocked off and any sound inside the room has less bounce than a soggy meatball. The room would probably drive a Swiss yodeler mumbling back to the Alps, but it would be wonderful for apartment house dwellers or folks who live so close to each other that they might as well be under the same roof. Just think of all the peace and quiet you could have . . . no sounds of outside radios, TV, arguments, children or animals. It sounds kind of like Navy enlistment propaganda to us.

Scientists usually estimate the world's age at two billion years. But one professor now claims it's nearer 3,550,000. It sure is a relief to us to get these things straightened out. Miss Peggy Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sullivan, 10 Havendale, was awarded first place in painting and Miss Peggy Seegar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Seegar, 1428 South Church street, was awarded first place in photography in the "Picture Your Home Frontier" Art Exhibit held this month in the Girl Scout office.

Both girls are members of Troop No. 27 of which Mrs. Sullivan is the leader. Their entries will be sent to Colorado where they will be exhibited at the national round-up in July with entries from other Girl Scout councils in the nation. Over 7,500 Girl Scouts will be encamped there.

Judging for the local contest was done by local artists and photography experts, who had a word of praise for the caliber of work shown.

Second place in painting was awarded to Miss Ellen Dawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Dawson, 333 Lake street. She is a member of Troop No. 16, Mrs. W. Derringer, leader. Second place in photography also went to Miss Peggy Seegar.

The winning painting pictured four churches on four corners and showed excellent depth perception in depicting a difficult architectural display. The winning photograph was a well-balanced picture of the telephone building.

Troops which furnished entries for the contest were: Brownie Troop No. 16 of which Mrs. Walter Derringer is leader; Intermediate Troop No. 27, Mrs. Sullivan, leader; Intermediate Troop No. 75, Mrs. Dawson, leader; Brownie Troop No. 80 of Waverly, Mrs. Wilma Ball, leader.

Troop Ceremonies

Court of Honor ceremonies were held this week by members of Intermediate Troop No. 24 of Lincoln school, Mrs. Glenn Gross and Mrs. Gordon Johnson are the leaders. Mothers were invited to attend the program at the school. After presenting badges to girls who had earned them, Mrs. Gross showed movies in the school auditorium of the troop's recent camp-out at New Salem. Refreshments were served later.

Brownie Troop No. 3 of Lafayette school held fly-up ceremonies this past week at the home of Mrs. Ralph Heiss, 283 Sandusky, assistant leader of the troop. Mrs. T. H. Armstrong is the leader. The girls formed a semi-circle while four of them gave a short history of Girl Scouting explaining the slogan, the motto, the handshake and the salute. For the candlelighting part, Mrs. Armstrong explained the trefoil and Mrs. Heiss lit the candles while ten girls each gave one of the Girl Scout laws. Several mothers were guests. Refreshments were served following the program.

Camping Trips

Several troops planned overnight camping trips for this weekend and cancelled them because of rainy weather. Troops which braved the weather anyway included Intermediate Troop No. 43, Mrs. W. C. Everett and Mrs. Cecil Cline, leaders, who camped Friday night at the Scout cabin at Camp Shagbark and Intermediate Troop No. 75, Mrs. C. A. Dawson, leader, who camped there Saturday night. Mrs. Marian Clay's Intermediate Troop No. 33 camped Friday night in the back yard of the assistant leader, Mrs. LaMasters, 1302 East Railroad street.

Troop No. 43 on their camping trip Friday combined several events. A potluck picnic for parents of the girls was held first at the Girl Scout cabin. California hamburgers were made and served by the girls. Following the picnic a court of awards took place with badges awarded to those who had completed their work. Later, the parents returned home and the girls spent the night at the cabin with their leaders, Mrs. Everett and Mrs. Cline.

Members of the program committee of the Board of Directors met Friday morning at the Scout office to plan fall rallies for Brownies, Intermediate and Senior Girl Scouts. They also planned the semi-annual council meeting to be held in September.

Camp training for Brownie leaders was held Tuesday all day at Camp Shagbark with Mrs. Darrell Roegge, camp trainer, in charge along with Mrs. Alex Jones, camp director. On Thursday the training for Intermediate leaders was held in the Scout office because of rainy weather with Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Hartman giving the training.

The meetings of the Waverly-Franklin Neighborhood leaders and the Jacksonville Neighborhood leaders scheduled for the coming week have been cancelled because of end-of-school activities.

Training committee members will meet Monday morning, May 25, at 10 o'clock in the Scout office and the public relations committee will meet Tuesday, May 26, at 10 a.m. at the office.

The ratio of 11 women for every 9 men is blamed on World War II deaths. The 98 million persons living in Russian cities is an increase of 40 million since '39. Red claim of low death and high birth rates is coupled with boast of the highest marriage rate in the world—12 marriages a year for each 1,000 residents. Finessing is fun and usually profitable but there are some finesses that can lose a trick but can't gain one. Obviously a finesse of this type should be shunned like the plague.

Hand No. 2 from the Intercollegiate tournament illustrates one of these.

South is in four spades and West opens the king of clubs. South takes either the first or second club. It is immaterial which one.

Now South must go after the trumps and here is one of those finessing situations where he must not finesse. No matter how the spades break South has to lose a spade trick and if he plays the queen and there is a singleton king anywhere South must lose two spade tricks.

Therefore, South's correct play is to lead a low spade. West plays his king and now South will have little difficulty with his spade game.

The simplest play is just to let West hold the spade trick but there are lots of complicated safety and pseudo-safety plays available; all of which work. The key play was the low spade to the ace instead of an honor.

Journey To Love

By Virginia Nielsen

© 1959 by Virginia Nielsen. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Someone has searched Kathie's strong box in which she has a steamship ticket to Hawaii, and a yellowed deed, possibly worthless, to some land in Hawaii.

* * *

VI

It seemed incredible that someone else could have used the key without her knowledge. Mrs. Jensen was the only person who had access to her room, the only one who had seen her put the key away. The older woman had been in her bedroom, where she had come to see Kathie's new clothes, when Kathie put her travelers' checks in the box.

Kathie went quickly in search of Mrs. Jensen. She found her down in the yard, and, surprisingly, Buck was with her.

Kathie was too angry to be polite. "Mrs. Jensen, what did you want from my strongbox?"

The older woman colored and glanced at Buck. That look gave Kathie Ebberts a hint of the truth and she was not surprised when Buck spoke.

Buck answered for Mrs. Jensen.

"It wasn't her, Kathie. She did it for me. I wanted another look at your Uncle Job's deed."

Kathie faced him, her eyes blazing. "And couldn't you have asked me?"

"I could have," Buck said unsmilingly. "But I didn't think you'd like what I intended to do. I wired the surveyor's description to Honolulu to find out if your deed's recorded."

"Oh, you did!" Kathie said scathingly. "And what did you find out, Mr. Fix-it?"

"Nothing yet," Buck said stolidly. "There hasn't been time."

"You might have saved your money," she said furiously, "because I'm going anyway."

He looked at her. "You mean that the trip means more to you than our marriage does, Kathie."

"Or that the money means more to you than anything else does!" Kathie retorted sharply. "You can't bear to see me spend it, can you?"

The deep, dark color came creeping up from his blue collar. "We may as well call things off, Kathie. I guess your ideas are too big for a farmer's wife."

Kathie tossed her head and turned swiftly away from him—swiftly enough so that he could not see the tears starting to her eyes. For she knew now that there was no patching up the quarrel that had been growing between them ever since her uncle's death. She had taken a step that would change her whole life.

* * *

Mrs. Jensen followed her to her room. "I'm just as sorry as I can be, dear," she said unhappily. "I never would have done it if I'd known it would cause trouble between you and Buck."

"It's all right, Mrs. Jensen. We were having trouble, anyway."

"Why can't you forget that old deed, dear, and settle down here with Buck? Fifteen hundred dollars looks big to you, Kathie, but believe me, it isn't much money."

"Mrs. Jensen," Kathie asked, looking past her out of the window, "do you think your husband would help me arrange an auction? I want to sell everything of Uncle Job's—everything the bank isn't taking."

The older woman pressed her lips tightly together, realizing that her advice was not wanted. "Why, yes," she answered stiffly. "I'm sure he will help you."

Buck took the auction as a personal affront; Kathie knew, sick at heart, that he had been counting on Uncle Job's things as his own. He continued to help with the chores, for the bank had not yet taken the livestock away, but be strained about the farm looking like a thundercloud.

The farmhouse and the barnyard were cleared by the auction. And Kathie added a few travelers' checks to her little packet, and some handsome pieces of luggage to her purchases.

* * *

On the day she was to set sail, the Jensens drove her to San Francisco to board the Lurline. Buck did not offer to see her off, and Kathie did not invite him. The estrangement was complete.

Her first view of the sleek white liner that would carry her to Hawaii took Kathie's breath away. The pictures had not shown that it would tower so thinly and sharply above the dock like this!

The Jensens boarded the ship with her somewhat hesitantly, after being assured by a ship's officer that they were allowed to do so. But they were ill at ease among the smartly dressed people who thronged the foyer, talking so confidently in gay, strident voices.

But nothing dampened Kathie's spirit. After the quiet, somber days at the farm, the excited chatter and laughter, the novelty of her surroundings, the pervasive scents of flowers and perfumes mingled with tobacco smoke, were as stimulating as strong drink.

Kathie was in a daze of delight. The Jensens went with her to find her stateroom, which proved to be surprisingly luxurious. They helped her check her luggage, then sat stiffly on the edges of the modern chairs, trying not to show their disapproval of this waste of her money, wanting badly to get away.

Kathie was fully aware of their discomfort, but at this last moment she wanted to cling to them as the last familiar things in a world more strange than she had anticipated.

Cocktail parties were in progress in almost every stateroom, and the noise and fervor spilled over into Kathie's room.

The Jensen's' disapproval increased. They did not like drinking. And soon they rose to go.

PIGEON PAL

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Stanley Burgi, 13, stayed awake all night to hatch a pigeon.

He kept the egg, from which sounds of the baby's pecking were coming, warm in his hands.

Stanley said the mother pigeon flew away and didn't come back to her nest. After the hatching, he took over the job of feeding with an eyedropper.

TIRESOME OVERSIGHT

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Fred Halleman ended up with one spare newspaper after he took over his ailing son's paper route one morning. The father retraced the entire route before he realized the paper was the one for his house.
